for the government, to have been one government closed when it was announced no more applications were Keen interest marked the draw at Minot, Bismarck, Garrison, Ryder and Several hundred registered from Minnesota and next to the Omaha state, Wisconsin, Iowa, North Dakota, Illinois and Kansas sent the largest number of names.

total registration was 25,000, divided as follows: Minot, 32,459; Bismarck, 2,500; Garrison, 100; Toga, 100 and of the Great Northern railroad at Minot, was the last person to register.

Minot was crowded with headquaters who registered at the close with the intention of remaining until the mobiles to see the land and others visited the show places about the city.

In all 6,000 names are to be drawn. The drawing will considerable time. The names will be drawn by Robert Hanna, son of Representative L. B. Hanna of Fargo, and Douglas Devine, son of former Governor J. A. Devine of Minot.

It has been decided to erect a platform in the registration building on Peterson street, where the drawing will be placed and aired. Mr. Hanna, Minot, will be placed in the chair, and the drawing will proceed to the center of the pile of envelopes, where he will pick out the names. The drawing No. 1 and the name of the winner will be announced. The drawing that will proceed until twice as

Endertin to Fort Ransom Trail Road May Be Built Soon.

Endertin—Plans looking to the construction of an electric railway line between Endertin and Fort Ransom in inland town in Minot county, which have been contemplated for some time have advanced to the point where it is practically certain that the work will be done. A large amount of stock has been sold and the personnel are enthusiastic over their success.

E. B. Lovelock of Fort Ransom, one of the pioneer residents of that town and who has been throughout the work at the head of the movement, has been engaged in the task of working up enough enthusiasm to make the company possible for two or three years and declares he has finally been successful in so doing.

Fort Ransom has about fifteen miles of track in operation. The work on the establishment of an electric railway has been successful in so doing.
The roads are not of the best, and the Plan of Stable Showing Method of Ventilation—A, Intake between galling joists; B, intake on hay rack; C, Window intake; D, Side section of double stall and exhaust fan; E, Back view, same; F, Exhaust fan and side connection; G, I, I, I, Location of passage intake.

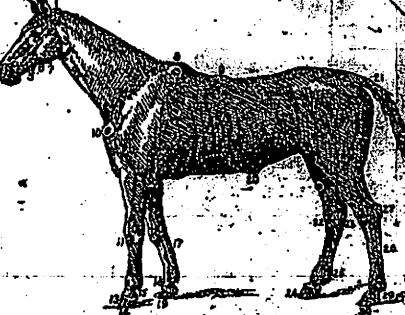

For stables of ordinary width, the common and most satisfactory form of fresh air inlet is a sash at each stall blinged at the bottom, opening upward, but with galvanized iron pieces attached to the sides of the window frame, so that the only admitted has to go, are of course over the top of the sash. The sash is made of two pieces of wood, one for the top of the frame, with a beveled wire sash projecting from the top of the sash, allows the window to be opened any number of inches. The top edge of the metal slide plates are turned upward so as to make a stop that prevents the windows from falling open too low.

TO DESTROY GROUND HOGS

May be Poisoned With Wheat Soaked in a Solution of Strychnine—Also How to Trap Them.

(By WALTER D. LEWIS.) Ground hogs may be poisoned with wheat soaked in a solution of strychnine. They are easily trapped at the entrance of their burrows. A better way is to soak a bit of moss or hay with a mixture of carbon and place it well down in the burrow covering the entrance with a heavy cloth. The carbon being heavier than it penetrates to the bottom of the burrow and the animal is trapped. Great care in handling bluishspite of carbon must be observed because it is a deadly poison and must never be inhaled. The bottles containing it should be kept tightly corked until the moment it is to be used.

LIFE SAVED BY FRIEND'S ADVICE
"About three years ago I suffered with rheumatism and being having an operation performed I lost my wife with a case of kidney trouble. I was doctored by several physicians and a specialist as well as the advice of a friend and received a bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. After taking the contents of the first bottle I felt greatly relieved and decided to continue it. After taking the contents of three more bottles, I experienced a complete cure. I cannot recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root too highly to anyone suffering from kidney or bladder trouble.

West Girl in Error When She Imagined Herself Lost Tempest of His Heart.

She imagined his room with her photograph smiling at him from over the mantel, while another of her photos looked demurely at him from a leather case on the dressing table.

When she received his reply she nearly fainted. Here it was that the wretch wrote:

Dear Mabel: I would like awfully much to return your photos, but, honestly, you give all dress and pose so much like for the camera, that I can't tell any of your own apart if you like, I will send you over 100 or 150 photos that I have of miscellaneous girls and you can pick your own.

The Almont Arena
Almont North Dakota

ALMONT NEWS NOTES

Gleaned from Here, There and Everywhere.
By the Arena Gate-Keeper.

E. H. Erb was in town the first part of the week.

W. D. Waggoner and his estimable wife were shopping in town on Saturday.

Rickert Olson shipped two carloads of cattle to St. Paul on last Saturday.

The Messrs. Christine Nelson and Grace Jacobson went down to Bismarck last Saturday to register for a Fort Berthold claim.

Robert Bird went down to Mandan Thursday to prepare for the Fair next week. He will ride his father's horses in the races.

School opened in Almont on Tuesday with an attendance of fifteen pupils. Many of the country pupils have not enrolled yet.

Lawrence Nelson purchased a shotgun of Nels Becklund and now he is looking for some one to catch and tie down the chickens.

Nels Becklund purchased a new shot gun this week, and the chickens don't seem a bit afraid, but then Nels states that he will get them straight.

Nels Becklund, Carl Studquist and Pete Nelson were at Flasher, Carson and Lark the latter part of last week on business. They drove down in the auto.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Wade are the proud parents of an eight pound baby boy, born to them on Wednesday forenoon. Mother and child are doing nicely and E. W. wears a contented smile while passing the cigars.

The hunting season opened up Thursday and the sportsmen proved thicker than the chickens but some well filled bags were brought home—and about those deadly shots—well—we will leave that to the reader, to believe or not to believe.

R. C. Bird returned Tuesday from Elkin where he had gone to race his horse against the once favorite Nana, of Elkin, but who could now be bought very cheap, so we are told, after the fancy trouncing it received at the hands of Hen's horse, Mary Ann. Mr. Bird went down and entered the race which was held there on last Sunday and today his pocketbook is filled with about $250.00 of good Elkin money, while the Elkin people are wondering if they really had a race horse or not. Hen gave them everything but the bones and beat them by 150 feet. It's a real think-aloud, but hereafter the Elkin sports must choose horses in their own class and not put their money up on common horses like the "once famous" Nana. Almont has only real race horses.

A well attended and thoroughly enthusiastic meeting was held in Feiland's District school No. 2, on Sunday, September 3rd for the purpose of establishing a Sabbath School in this locality. Rev. A. T. Jurdanoff presided in Almont. The following officers were duly elected: Superintendent, Miss Crawford; Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Martin; Trustees, Miss Carrie Jarbohn. In addition to the officers hereafter the following members of a committee were appointed: Miss Fay Crawford; Mrs. Miller and Mr. Hart; Jacobson Teachers, Miss Jacobson and Miss Martin. Judging from the enthusiastic display at this meeting, and from the well known abilities of each one of the other ladies, teachers and committee appointed, this Sabbath school promises to be a successful success. More power to them! The Sunday school is an institution of a promising fellowship and making better Christians and nobler citizens, cannot be excelled.

Miss Alice Day was a Bismarck visitor on Tuesday.

John Tischler, of Flasher, was in the city Saturday of last week.

A. T. Nelson the Caran Attorney was in Almont Monday on business.

Noah Becklund is building a barn for one of the prosperous farmers near Lark.

Miss May Timmerman and Miss Tolly Jacobson were visitors at Sims on Thursday.

It rained a good part of this week and was very disagreeable especially to the threshers.

Miss Amanda Nelson left Saturday for Bismarck where she will attend school during the coming winter.

Carl Sundquist returned to his home at Minneapolis after an enjoyable visit with his cousin, Nels Becklund.

Julius Breckhoff left on Saturday for Spooner W's., in response to a telegram announcing the death of his mother.

R. C. Bird left Wednesday for Mandan where he will get his horses in shape for the races at the Fair next week.

Frank Todd and N. E. Erb were New Salem visitors on Friday to attend a session of Court. They returned the same day.

Mrs. J. W. Hurley and children arrived home Thursday from an extended visit with relatives and friends at Madison, S. D.

The Kensington Club met on Wednesday afternoon of this week at the home Mrs. C. E. Berglund, but on account of the weather very few turned out. The ladies must remember that a fine is imposed upon those not attending so hurry and pay the treasurer. We men all think a picnic this fall would be lovely—but after Dec. 1st we positively refuse to attend any lawn socials. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. T. Cain on Wednesday, Sept. 26th.

Attorney G. R. Brainard, of Hebron, was in town Thursday and perfected plans whereby he will attend to the law business of this city, and vicinity hereafter by routing down every Monday and remaining until all business is finished. He will have his office in the Arena building and letters addressed to him in care of the Arena will reach him promptly. Mr. Brainard is an able lawyer, we are glad to recommend him to the public. Read his card in this issue of the Arena and for further information in regard to dates, etc. call in and we will gladly give you the desired information.

Bee-Keeping and other 'Side Lines' on the Farm

It is admitted by almost all students of the situation that the present growth in the population of this country keeps up—we may have 125,000,000 people by the middle of the century—farming conditions will not be so good as they are now, and the influence of the greater congestion. The expected result is the total disappearance of the big farms. Indeed, for that matter, the "bonanza farms" that excited the wonder of the world a decade or two ago have been gradually disappearing in later years and probably the next generation will find scarcely one of them left unless it be in the most isolated sections of the country.

There will not be many farms as small as the majority of those in Europe nor will the small farm be as universal in the New World in time as it is in the Old, but what it is manifest that the era of the small farm is

It is a fact that the only way to make a profitable business is to obtain much more than the price paid for the product. The price of the product is determined by the market, and the farmer must be able to supply the market with the best quality of product at the lowest cost.

When the weather is unfavorable, the grasses that are most likely to survive are those that are hardy and able to withstand the cold and the dry weather. Brome grass is one of the best for this purpose.

The Village Library

(Enter small boy with two books under his arm.)

Small Boy (to young woman librarian)—My mother wants two new books. She says she hasn't a thing to read.

Librarian—Very well. Lay the books down, Jimmy, and I'll see what I can do when I get a chance to get these things out of the shelves.

Jimmy (laying the books on the table)—She says not to send her anything she's already read. She says last time Miss Smith sent her book she'd read and she was awful mad because she says Miss Smith does that all the time. She says she won't send for books any more than Miss Smith's here.

Librarian (mentally admiring Miss Smith's perspicacity and determining to follow her example)—Well, I'll try to find her something.

Jimmy—Say, she says for me to tell you not to send her any more of these here old books about dogs and cats and things. She says last time you sent her one of these old nature factory books and she just hated it. And she says—like Fritz (to second small boy, who enters, followed by a dog). "Say, I been lookin' for you. Say, I'm going to smash your face for totting the letters I can't pitch at the game Saturday."

Librarian—Boys, you must be quiet. Jimmy, here's a book for your mother. Jimmy—But she won't like this one. She don't never like those here brown colored ones. Say, Fritz, you come on outside and I'll punch your head for you. I bet I'll learn you not to go round sayin'—
(Small boys clatter out.)

(Enters young woman with a book which she throws down on the desk.)

Young Woman—Miss Perkins, what did you mean my recommending that book to me? If you do such a thing again I'll have you arrested for making false representations. It's the stupidest thing I ever struck. Do you mean to say you really liked it?

Librarian—Yes, I did like it very much. But you must remember that I told you I didn't know whether you would like it or not. All I said was that I liked it. (Laughs.)

Young Woman—Oh, I suppose your taste is good enough, Miss, but in this case yours and mine don't agree. Get it this all the new fiction you have? Why, I never saw such a pinky old library. Why don't you get some good books?

Librarian—That's a very brilliant idea, my dear. I'll speak to the library board about it. You know the board selects the books and it's always glad to have practical suggestions.

Young Woman—You're rather brilliant yourself this afternoon. It seems to me. (The librarian around the room for a few minutes, talking down a book occasionally and putting it back again with disgusted expression. "I wish they'd put me on the library board. I'd like to show them the kind of books they ought to buy. Just as you haven't anything fit to read, I'll go home and sew awhile I'm making a perfectly beautiful embroidered waist. I'll bring it over here tomorrow and show it to you.")

Librarian—Fritz (to over and work on it and keep the company. There hasn't been anybody here today but two small boys and a dog, and probably there won't be anybody tomorrow, so we can have the place to ourselves.)

Young Woman—That'll be fine. I'll bring some lemons and sugar and some cookies and we can have a little tea party.

Librarian—Don't forget. It's sure to come. Goodby.

(Young woman departs. Enter small boy, standing in the door behind him.)

Small Boy—Say, Miss Perkins, tell me a good book to read. Say, the last time I was to the library Miss Smith she handed me a lesson, all right. It was named "The Parents' Insults," or something. Say, it was the limit. I never read but one of the stories, but that one was on the bum, all right. Say, it was 'bout a feller had a piece of string or something and he rolled it in a ball and then he put it in his shirt pocket and everything, and then one day he broke his bow 'n' arrow and he took the string and fixed it, and he got the best shot. But I nearly died laughing at the story. I bet I wouldn't a kept that little old piece of string like he did. Say, Miss Perkins, I got to speak a piece at school the last day. Say, can you tell me something to speak?

Librarian—What kind of a piece do you have to have, Fred?

Fred—Oh, something funny or maybe something sad funny. I don't know; just some kind of a piece. One of the kids he's going to have something. I've forgotten what he's going to recite, but Miss Perkins she's got a piece of wax. A kid out here give it to me and I'm going to bust it in two and give you a piece.

Librarian (hastily)—Oh, don't bother to break it, Fred. You'd better keep it all.

Fred—Aw, he's a sport. I bet you're afraid somebody'll see you chawin' it. Gee! There's Jack Parker's mother. I bet he'll get a piece and he'll recite about the game Saturday. (Exit Librarian with a sigh of relief.)

We will sell you land cheaper than you can rent. If you are ambitious and willing to work the land we will sell you a good quarter on crop payments. You get one half of the crop and the other half you apply on the purchase price of the land. It's just like renting land excepting that when you have raised so much grain you get a Warranty Deed to the land and it's yours, while if you rent you rent you get nothing but a receipt and a chance to move to another rented place. If we didn't have faith in our land we couldn't and wouldn't sell it in this way. Write to us for further particulars.
