Ad Talk No. One

There never was a better prospect for a beautiful harvest than now. This splendid outlook can be used to advantage to advertise the advantages of the town and its surrounding territory to the outside world. This can best be done by a liberal use of printer's ink. A newspaper that is filled with the advertisements of the local merchants is an incontrovertible statement that they have faith in the town and country. The newspaper that is void of the advertising of the home merchant is the open letter to the catalog house to double and treble their efforts by letter by circular, by canion and by advertising. They are tons of millions of stamps, circulars, and catalogs. There are ways of
