Store at Flasher Is Destroyed by Fire.

Flasher Hunter—Flasher experienced its first real baptism of fire in the early hours of Tuesday morning when the store of Messrs. Dopking & Stone, together with its entire stock of goods, was discovered to be on fire, and before a general alarm could be sent out, the building and its contents was entirely consumed. The fire made a clean sweep of every thing except the books of the firm, which fortunately, Mr. Stone had taken home with him the evening before. The fire was first discovered by James Meyers, who immediately ran to Mr. Stone's residence and gave the alarm, but the fire had gained such headway that saving the building or any of its contents was a practical impossibility. Mr. Dopking at the time of the fire was not at home, having, in company with Mrs. Dopking, gone to Mandan on Monday to attend the Chautauqua. At the time the fire was discovered by Mr. Meyers, flames were breaking out in all parts of the building, indicating that the fire had a good start in the interior of the building.

Messrs. Dopking & Stone estimate their loss at between $10,000 and $12,000 on the building and stock, and was covered by insurance in the amount of $6,000.

The probable cause of the fire has not been determined, but it is surmised that mice getting into a bunch of matches on the shelves, on the north side of the building, caused the fire, for on this side is where the fire was making greatest headway when discovered.

The destruction of their fine store is a heavy loss to Messrs. Dopking & Stone, and the town in general, but with characteristic enterprise they propose to commence rebuilding at once.

People Are Optimistic.

Everywhere in the state the optimism of the people is manifest and the faith that has been shown in its productivity is about to be rewarded by the most bounteous yield of grain that has ever been the lot of the farmers of this state to reap. In fact it is thru this faith in the soil's fertility and the faith in the law of history repeating itself that the people who have stood by the state thru the lean years are about to come into their own and be repaid for the many hardships encountered.

Another thing is the numerous lessons that have been taught by the poor crops of the two years past. Dairying has been brought to a higher position in the estimation of the farmers who have always depended upon the wheat. New sources of profit have been realized by the many who were deprived of crops. Grains and other things best adapted to the climate and soil have been introduced, and the man who has lost his crop in previous years has learned to plant so that with the minimum of moisture he will receive a fair return for his effort.

Comfort to Animals in Hardest Will Re-pay Owner Many Times.

One half million horses will soon be laboring faithfully, and with small compensation, to harvest N. Dakota's mammoth grain crop. The continued faithfulness or their work will depend, in no small degree, upon the care they receive from their owners.

The horses will, in many instances, be annoyed or tortured by the chafing of harness, by flies, by heat, and by hard work. It must be remembered that these horses—like the drivers who, perhaps, sit high on the binder seat—have feelings, get tired and nervous, and become hungry and thirsty. Their discomfort should not be added to by hitting them with the whip, or by letting them go without water for an unnecessarily long time. A barrel of water should be taken to the field, and the horses should be watered as often as the driver feels thirsty.

When a stop is made, turn the horses toward the wind, if possible so that they may cool off. When they are resting, take the load off their necks, if possible. Give them a chance to roll and scratch themselves when they are unharmed at night. They should be given a good bed and plenty to eat at night and they should be watered in the morning before they are fed.

There is no animal that serves the farmer more faithfully than the horse. Owners, therefore, should not be thoughtless, and permit them to suffer unnecessary discomforts. It pays in money, as well as personal satisfaction, to make the horses comfortable.

Cream and Other Produce Collected by Buyer.

A creamery operated in McIntosh county, N. C., has collected the cream from its patrons, instead of having it delivered by them at the creamery, as is the custom in most of our northern co-operative associations. It occurred to the buyer quite casually from reading of what was being done in some parts of Minnesota, when collecting cream, they might as well collect fresh eggs at the same time. So they called on the farmers with cartons and orders for marking the eggs and cartons, and now the collection is regularly made. The company, in order to insure the freshness of the cream and hold its patrons to its strict accountability, if any of them twice reported as delivering bad eggs, his eggs are no longer accepted. The driver is supplied with cash to pay for the eggs received, and the business is said to pay well. The system of collecting cream and eggs at the farms, instead of requiring their delivery at the creamery, may perhaps be an improvement on the Minnesota plan. It would at least promote the regular payment of the farmer from the day of the consumer's table.

TITANIC SINKS. 1,400 DROWNED. GREATEST MARINE DISASTER IN HISTORY.

Giant Liner—Strikes an Iceberg And Plunges to the Bottom in Less Than an Hour After.

New York.—The White Star liner Titanic, the world's greatest steamship, has gone down some 500 miles off Cape Race, with 600 of her 1,400 passengers and her full crew of 850 men on board. That the greatest catastrophe in marine history has occurred to a vessel of her size is admitted by the officials of the White Star Steamship company in New York. The liner Carpathia, the first vessel to come within sight of the Titanic, rescued all the passengers and the 512 crew members, but the greatest oceanic disaster in history has occurred. The Carpathia, which was 270 persons short of its complement, was unable to give much aid to the 1,400 persons who were on board the Titanic. Early reports stated that all the passengers and crew were saved, but the Titanic had been taken off by the Allen Line's Virginian and the Carpathia, but the wireless messages received in every detail. No hope is held out at the office of the White Star line that any man on board has survived to tell the story of the disaster.

The Steamship Titanic.

The final sinking of the titanic, although some of the women in the boat may have witnessed the sinking. Only by a miracle, it is pointed out, could any person who stood by the ship survive the great vessel's plunge. The Titanic carried the most notable list of passengers ever borne across the Atlantic by sea vessel. Among them were Mrs. J. P. Morgan, the richest man in America, and his wife, and Mrs. Astor, the richest woman in America, and her husband. The Titanic was the most magnificent ship ever built, and she was the pride of the White Star line.

The collision of the Titanic with an iceberg in New York is now known to have occurred at 11:40 p.m. on Sunday night. The ship was proceeding full speed when she struck the iceberg. The Titanic's starboard side was struck, and she began to list to starboard. The ship's engines were stopped, and she began to sink. The Titanic's bow was the first part to go under, and she disappeared beneath the waves. The ship's sinking was witnessed by the Carpathia, which was 270 persons short of its complement. The Carpathia, which was 270 persons short of its complement, was unable to give much aid to the 1,400 persons who were on board the Titanic.

YORK JOHN JACOB ASTOR. Mrs. Astor's death was announced in New York. The Titanic's sinking was a great tragedy for the world. The ship's sinking was a great tragedy for the world. The ship's sinking was a great tragedy for the world.

Cars from Siding Blown on Main Line Against Freight Train Causing a Derailment.

Sims, N. D., July 26—One of the most terrific wind storms that has visited this section for years, swept down thru the Curlew and Sims Valleys, Thursday evening about eight o'clock, and left a path littered with destroyed fields of grain and responsible for one derailed train and delaying many others. Culliverts were washed out, small outbuildings blown down, and at the Feland Siding a number of cars were driven by the wind on to the main line in the way of a fast freight. The engineer was not able to stop his train until too late to avoid a collision which resulted in derailling the train. No one hurt. The wrecker had cleared the track at 10 o'clock and let a number of stalled trains go by.

One of the heaviest rains of the season, fell last night and considerable grain was blown and beaten to the earth by wind and rain. Reports are current that hail did considerable damage north and west of here, but the verification will probably come later. The other parts of the country received a splendid wetting which will greatly help the filling grain, as well as to be beneficial to the late grain.

MAIL ORDER HOUSE

The "Tradesman" Thinks Judicial Advertising Will Help in Abating Some of Them.

On all sides writs go to local dealers as they contemplate what they term the nefarious ways of the mail order houses, says "The Tradesman." These mammoth department stores not only have the audacity to sell cheaply, but they absolutely advertise the fact. They send their pound and a half catalog into every home on a simple request and the lady of the house can read all about cut prices from adhesives to zinc. What is worse she attempts to apply these fascinating quotations to her purchases from the local merchant. His only resource is as a rule explanations that somehow do not explain.

Mail order houses advertise bargains and the average woman has a kindly feeling toward the fellow who will sell her for 9 cents what she has to pay 15 cents for locally, altho the freight quality may not be quite the same or the freight charges make it more expensive than the same product, yet she is only exercising the same right the merchant claims for himself, the right to buy in what she believes is the cheapest market. She makes mistakes and so does he. Perhaps the largest mistake that the latter makes is that he does not advertise as thoroughly, as carefully and as persistently as his metropolitan competitor. It is no use to say, "I am Jones, I have a store, I may have what you want, if not, I have here something just as good of better which you ought to buy." That sort of mandatory announcement has been commended trade when the ships of Ponce de Leon rocked in the outer bay, but everybody knows that it is obsolete today, except the comatose merchant and he never did believe in advertising for his store "has always given a fair profit till these mail order houses broke out, they ought to be against the law."

It is broadly suspected that the sleeping sickness is not entirely confined to Africa.
