WEBB LIQUOR BILL HITS NORTHWEST

Shipments to Individual Dealers in "Dry" States Prohibited by Measure.

Washington, March 8.—Minnesota and the "dry" states on her west and south will be greatly interested in the Webb-Kenyon liquor bill which has passed both houses over the Taft veto, and thus goes at once into effect. Minneapolis, St. Paul, Milwaukee and Chicago it has been estimated, have been doing business worth several millions of dollars a year with individual dealers in liquor in Iowa, the Dakotas and Kansas. This new law will put a stop to this kind of traffic, for every consignment of liquor sent into a "dry" state to be offered for sale in that state may now be seized at the destination point and confiscated by the state authorities. The result will be that the wholesale liquor dealers will no longer do business with the "bootleggers" and other kinds of illicit dealers in the "dry" states, for the risk is too great and losses must necessarily be very heavy on such business.

This is precisely what the temperance people have had in mind and they put themselves behind the Webb-Kenyon bill with a degree of unanimity which was responsible for the big majority over the veto in the two branches of congress. Shipment of liquor into a "dry" state for personal use will not be prohibited under the new law unless the state in question has a law that bars the personal use of liquor.

STATE LAW EFFECTIVE

If the state says that liquor may not be sold as a drug, for sacramental purposes or for any other purpose, then the Webb-Kenyon bill steps in and makes the state law effective in case of interstate shipments.

The interpretation of the new law was given today by Senator Kenyon of Iowa, who was the joint author of it. He was asked to clear up the point which has been in doubt as to the right of an individual living in a "wet" state to buy liquor from a "wet" state and apply it to his own use. The senator said: "The Webb act" does not prohibit a Minneapolis liquor dealer from sending whiskey into the Dakotas for personal use. The reason is that neither these states nor any other has ever prohibited the personal use of liquor and they never will. To prohibit such use would be unconstitutional.

If however, such a prohibition should be enacted into law, and should say that no man might have liquor in his house for use of his family and that law could be found constitutional, then the Webb law would bar the shipment of liquor in interstate commerce from entering that man's house.

APPLICATION

The exact truth about this legislation is this: The Webb act makes the interstate shipment of liquor amenable absolutely to the laws of the separate states, whatever these laws may be. At present there are different laws in the different states regulating the sale and manufacture of liquor within their borders. Therefore the Webb act is general in application.

"The act is clearly constitutional, too, for the reason that congress has an absolute and defined right to regulate interstate commerce. If congress choose to declare liquor as a contraband of commerce, then it would be so declared and the supreme court would sustain it.

It is very certain that the liquor interests will carry the new law to the supreme court, where a decision probably will not be handed down for a couple of years unless under the new rules, the case can be expedited. The opinion of a good lawyer as President Taft that the bill is at least of doubtful constitutionality, in which belief he is backed by other lawyers of equal ability is beyond question, would encourage the appeal to the courts, even if there were no other reasons for such appeal.

About the Penitentiary.

Few North Dakotans realize that the biggest manufacturing enterprise in the state is located in Grove, Burleigh county. This manufacturing plant is a twine and cordage plant operated by the inmates of the state penitentiary. Statistics compiled for the Arena convey some very interesting information regarding the state penitentiary and its inmates.

There are at present 167 inmates in the penitentiary. Brick making farm operations and the running of the twine factory are the main occupations. In 1912, 3,119,500 pounds of twine was sold by the penitentiary to the farmers of the state. Forty-six occupations are represented among the inmates with laborers leading by a large margin, due undoubtedly to the number of transient laborers that visit the state.

Statistics covering a two year period show that most crimes are committed between the ages of 18 and 28 years, 52 percent of the inmates in the period entering the penitentiary at those ages. Thirty two per cent of the convicts in the state during that time were for grand larceny with robbery and burglary in the second degree next in importance.

A motion picture machine has been installed and at various times during the past year, the inmates have enjoyed the "movies." Reading matter is furnished by a library of 2000 volumes and the life of the convicts is made as pleasant as possible consistent with the rigorous rules which necessarily must govern the institution.

Monday noon No. 8, when several miles west of Almont, had the misfortune to break a wheel, and was tied up for a couple of hours. The train slipped into Almont and the car set out, turning the train over on its way. Repairmen came down and on Wednesday the car was put in shape to take the road again.

THE PARCEL POST SYSTEM

On January 1, 1913, there went into effect the Parcel Post Law, an act making possible the transportation at a much reduced rate of any form or factory product. This excepts printed matter and all other products otherwise provided for under existing definitions of class postage.

Any one living in the United States or its possessions, doing a business necessitating the transportation of any form or factory product, may deal more directly with his market at a saving of both time and money. The opportunities presented for the furtherance of any legitimate business are unlimited. It is confidently expected by the United States Government to be a potent factor in the development and betterment of all business relations, and is devised to that end.

For the purpose of determining the rates on Parcel Post packages of various weights up to eleven pounds, which rates vary according to the distance the package is to be sent, the territory of the United States and its possessions has been divided by the Post Office Department into 3,500 units of area, each of which is 30 minutes of longitude East and West and 30 minutes of latitude North and South. Each of the quadrangles so formed has been given a "Unit Number."

To determine the rate applicable to a Parcel Post shipment, it is necessary first to locate the unit from which the package is to be shipped, then to find in what zone the post office, to which the package is to be delivered, is located. A package to be delivered from local post office obtains local rate of 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

The zone lines radiate from the center of each unit. The first zone consists of the unit in which the post office from which the package is sent is located and every unit which touches it. The first zone, therefore, always consists of nine units with the unit from which you are shipping in their center.

The boundary of the second zone is the outer boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 1.50 miles. The boundary of the third zone is likewise the outer boundary of all units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 3.00 miles. The boundary of the fourth zone is the outer boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 4.50 miles. The boundary of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 6.00 miles. The boundary of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 7.50 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 9.00 miles.

The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 10.50 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 12.00 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 13.50 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 15.00 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 16.50 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 18.00 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 19.50 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 21.00 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 22.50 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 24.00 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 25.50 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 27.00 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 28.50 miles. The boundary of all of the units which are intersected by a circle whose radius from the center of the sending unit is 30.00 miles.

fer of the sending unit is 1,800 miles. The eight zone includes all units of area outside of the seventh zone.

If your map shows the zone lines radiating from the center of your unit, you can instantly determine in what zone any given unit is located, and from the "Table Showing Rates of Parcel Postage" you will learn the amount of postage necessary for a package of one to eleven pounds.

If the zones radiating from your unit are not printed on the map, use the scale provided in the lower margin, which is intended as a substitute for the zone lines when they are not printed on the map for determining the zone in which any unit of area is located, measuring from the center of the unit in which the shipment originates, to the nearest boundary of the unit in which the package is to be delivered.

What Constitutes Good Plowing.

There are many ideas and opinions on this subject, all of which may be right under certain conditions and wrong under others. The question of fall or spring plowing may be settled largely by studying the kind and condition of the soil, the crops to be grown and the convenience of the husbandman, says a contributor to Farm and Home.

Generally speaking, sandy soils should be plowed in the fall and clay in the spring. The advantage of fall plowing is sand is that the sub soil will remain firmer and the conservation of moisture more effective, particularly if constant cultivation of the surface soil goes on for the purpose of forming a dust mulch.

The advantages of spring plowing clay soil are that it will lay up lighter and the movement of the soil water through it will be more active. Corn and oats appear to like a soil that is somewhat firm, providing it has a fine, mellow surface. Potatoes and root crops requires a deep, mellow soil. Then fall-plowing should be best for the latter. The convenience of the husbandman counts for much. If by fall plowing certain fields, he can forward the work of spring and thereby make a material gain, he can possibly afford to plow even some clay soils in autumn.

The depth of plowing is another much discussed question. This, too, is somewhat relative. A deep soil must necessarily be more productive than a shallow soil, other things being equal, but suddenly deepening the plowing has often been productive of much harm. Shallow plowing on sandy soils should be the general rule, and changing the depth, together with a gradual deepening, on clay soils.

Next and last, may be considered the kind of furrow to turn. On clay soils and all others fairly adapted to grass and grain the rolling or clapping furrow is best. It lights the soil, mixes the organic matter more thoroughly and penetrates more thoroughly and more deeply than any other furrow. It leaves a portion of the furrow surface soil, where the small roots of the germinating seed can

TO OUT-CANADA CANADA PEOPLE

Efforts to Be Made to Exploit the Resources of This Great State.

To stem the tide of immigration to Canada and increase the flow of immigration to North Dakota by formation of an efficient publicity and immigration commission is the purpose of a bill introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Owens of Williams county. This bill which is the result of action by the Williston Commercial club provides for the appointment by the governor of a commission of three representatives, one from each congressional district. This commission shall have the power to employ a secretary at a salary not exceeding $1800 a year. It is probable that the chief duties of publicity would devolve upon the secretary and the selection of a competent man for that position will be one of the chief duties of the commission.

The men behind the movement realize that with Canada spending vast sums every year in advertising her resources with Montana, Minnesota and South Dakota all carrying on more extensive campaigns than this state, it is up to North Dakota to get some efficient method of placing the wonderful advantages before the people generally. It is particularly necessary that the Canadian northwest be met on its own ground and that publicity be opposed by equally effective publicity. Such a commission as the one authorized by this bill would receive the support of people all over the state because it would be representative and splendid results would be possible with this united support.

The duties of the commission would be to have charge of all state publicity, to have charge of all exhibits to be made outside the state and it makes it the duty of officers to furnish information to the commission.

The measure has been framed with an idea of getting results and if passed will mean much to the state.

We more readily obtain the food. It allows of a better circulation of air and enables the sun's rays to penetrate the ground to better advantage.

On sandy soils with shallow plowing, the flat furrow is best. The depth of plowing is not carried far enough to bring up any dead, inert matter, and the firm subsoil is better maintained.

"The advertising columns of the country weekly," says the publisher of a metropolitan newspaper reflects the progressiveness of the local business men. When you find the little local paper crowded with advertising of the home merchants, real estate dealers, confectioners, lumber dealers, banks and the dozen more other kinds of business, you can be sure of a live energetic lot of business men and failure is unknown."

"When you find the little weekly almost starved by the advertisers for fear the editor will make a few dollars, you will find a lot of gossip and grumblers behind the counters of the stores and at the helm in all lines of business" continued this man of large editorial ability, "and you will also find that the lion's share of the business is gobbled up by the mail order concerns who watch for this unprogressiveness in local business circles."

IN WHICH CLASS DO YOU ALMONT PLACE YOURSELF?

Almont has the territory. It has the soil surrounding it to make one of the best diversified farming sections of the northwest. What it needs is co-operations and enterprise to push thru to fruition the many good plans that are started and then die because some chronic kicker or pessimist, growls "It can't be done." Recently the creamery question has been before the public. There is a building standing idle. Machinery of a good make standing within, being allowed to go to waste and earning nothing on the money invested. An opportunity has come to open the creamery, but the matter goes no further than the state of discussion. What is the trouble? Ask one he blames another. Ask this other and someone else is to blame, ad infinitum.

The people want the creamery to open. They have the cows. Then why not call a meeting and get to work at once. Bring the ready capital and the owners together and strike some kind of a deal even if it is a compromise deal, but OPEN the creamery some way or another.

Read The Arena. It is the best rural weekly in the state. New subscriptions this week.

It has been a pleasure during the past week to greet so many patrons of this store. It will continue a pleasure to meet you whenever you come to town. In fact, if there is any way in which we can serve you, we want you to let us know and service will cheerfully be rendered.

There is beside the dollars and cents consideration, a personal element entering into these little meetings. We are here to give good service and unless we have the suggestions of our many friends, we are unable to meet the demands placed upon us. So if our service does not seem correct to you we will gladly welcome any suggestion you wish to make and if there is anything in our line and it is not in stock, we will get it for you.

Chew "Right-Cut"
the Real Tobacco
Chew—5 cents

MEN who know good tobacco are chewing "Right-Cut" instead of the old styles of tobacco.

It's a better chew. Its flavor is pure, rich and satisfying—seasoned, but not over-sweetened.

"Right-Cut" is a new blend of mellow, sappy leaf—age-ripened to get rid of the bitter and sting and bring out the crisp tobacco flavor. And the new method of cutting it lets you get all of it.

Five cents in "Right-Cut" goes further than a dime in old-style tobacco. It lasts longer. The rich cannot buy better, because there isn't any better.

Five cents a can. Ask your dealer today.

We guarantee it to be pure

WOULD TABOO READY PRINTS

At a meeting recently held at Minot the executive committee of the state press association adopted the following resolutions:

"WHEREAS, The ready print trust has raised the prices of ready prints to a prohibitive rate, and if the newspapers continue to use their service they will be compelled to raise the price of subscriptions to their customers.

"RESOLVED, By the officers of the North Dakota Press Association, assembled in session at Minot February 22, 1913, that it is our opinion that the members of the association and other publishers of the state, who are and have been, voluntarily fighting the trust in the interests of the people, believe the people of the state should in their turn assist the publishers in the fight, therefore be it further.

"RESOLVED, That we recommend that newspapers of the state discontinue the use of patents as soon as the serial stories running in their papers are ended and print their papers at home, even if it does necessitate the printing of smaller papers until local patronage will enable them to enlarge, and.

"RESOLVED, That we ask the people of the state of North Dakota to cooperate with their local newspapers in their efforts to get out of the clutches of this great trust which is robbing the publishers of the country, and which if allowed to do so will force the newspapers to raise the price of subscriptions and thus shift the burden upon the shoulders of the consumer.

"RESOLVED, That until an independent concern publishes ready prints and sells them to the publishers at a fair price, we urge every publisher in the state to cooperate with the North Dakota Press Association in their fight against this ready print trust.

"RESOLVED, That every paper in the state be asked to publish these resolutions in order to enlighten the people, so that they might know what the publishers have to contend with.
