Officers Made A Raid

Alleged Vendor of the Amber Fluid Evaded Arrest and Did Not Leave Future Address.

Sheriff Charles McDonald, his deputy Gabe Eckroth and States Attorney Birzing, motored into Almont, Wednesday afternoon and raided the bluff pig, but the sty was empty and the alleged keeper of the place had literally taken to the tall grass for a number of the townsman saw him disappear over the banks of Muddy creek and he was thereafter hidden from sight in the tall grass. The man sought was Charles Ellsworth.

The officers after vainly searching were not able to locate Ellsworth, so gave up the chase and returned to Mandan. Before they left for Mandan, a local citizen was deputized to be on the lookout for the man wanted.

That he returned to Almont at night was reported. Also that he went to New Salem or Sims and tried to make his getaway, but as a deputy started toward him to make arrest, he ran from the train and disappeared in the darkness.

At Sims a quartet of young ladies and gentlemen observed an auto being driven rapidly toward New Salem just a short time before train No. 5 was scheduled to pass thru. As both 1 and 5 were quite late the former train was running on No. 5's time and No. 5 went thru Sims at 1:40 a. m. so it is probably due to this fact that certain parties say Charley left Almont only a few minutes before No. 5 passed thru Almont, and who in company of another set out over the hills in an auto to "help him along" in evading the officers and escape arrest.

It gives the people of Almont a certain amount of satisfaction to know that the disgraceful conduct of Sunday afternoon, August 17th, will not be soon repeated. Ellsworth is gone and his best plan for the future is to remain away for a long time as the people are determined to have a time of decency prevail in this town for a period.

The law—the Voice of the people—says that no intoxicating liquor shall be brought within the State of North Dakota for the purpose of gift, sale or barter. When a small minority of people who have no regard for truth, sobriety, decency or law, attempt to dominate the entire community and in defiance of the statutes, sell and distribute to minors and others, indiscriminately, it is time for every one who believes in law and order, to rise and crush out those who seek to debauch young man- and woman hood for the satisfaction of appetites and money. The first step has been taken. And it now is squarely up to the fathers and mothers to say whether their children are to grow up into intelligent citizens or victims of vicious appetites.

Christ Bahr Withdraws

States He Is Satisfied on Farm As It Produces a Greater Revenue Than P. O.

The dazzling allurements and exclusive emoluments of the post office job in Almont were not great enough to entice Christ Bahr from his home near here to Almont, so he has withdrawn his name from the contestants in the post office race. He further states his farm would give a better return for the time and energy expended than the post office.

During the past week no new developments except as noted above, has been observed. There is a persistent rumor coming from the countryside that a dark horse is a very important factor in the race and that it is at present pretty well narrowed down to two parties not mentioned as candidates. That a farmer some miles from town and who formerly lived here is the one on whom the mantle will fall, has been stated on several occasions.

Equally persistent has the report been clung to and circulated that the editor of the Weekly Arena is the dark horse in the race. Denial of seeking the office has among a few adherents of other candidates, only precipitated more discussion and speculation. The editor of the Arena wishes it to be understood that he is not a candidate. He has not been a candidate and does not intend to become a candidate. He is sufficiently a partisan as to admit the defeat of his party at the polls last November and the

"Borrowed Item Boosts News"

Write-up of Heess Creamery Taken Body, Soul and Errors by Glen-Ullin Paper.

After "Borrowing" in full the descriptive write-up of the Heess Creamery Company's plant at Glen Ullin, under date of August 16th, and captioned, "A Growing Industry", the editor of the GLEN ULLIN NEWS under a new head sends it forth to his readers as a child of his brain. No credit is in any way given. The Weekly Arena for the preparation of the article or for having first published it.

Passing that phase of the matter we wish to express our thanks to the editor of the News for recognizing the merits of the article as a boost for Glen-Ullin. Thank you. Once more we must voice our very sincere thanks. And if we note any more splendid country developing institutions such as the Heess Creamery, we'll write 'em up and put their existence on record and give Glen Ullin credit for having them, too. Also if the article has merit sufficient for the News to derive any benefit or praise, we hereby offer it and do not want any credit for its preparation because when the writing processes merit enough to have a brother editor try to assume its parentage we receive our satisfaction from that alone.

Crops Better Than Estimate

Wheat and Other Grains Are Reported Yielding About 12 to 16 Bushels Per Acre.

Reports coming in from the farmers who have had their grain threshed indicate the yield as considerably better than at first estimated. The wheat is yielding from 12 to 16 bushels per acre, and in a few cases going above 18 bushels to the acre. This is pleasing to all as it will bring to this section a greater amount of money and enable more farmers to meet their bills. The late rains of all kinds are giving fair returns despite the long period of dry weather which prevailed over this section.

Received Some Fine Plums

The editor was the thankful recipient of a fine big box of ripe plums the middle of this week from Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Larson of Golden Glen Stock Farm. The fruit was excellent and we enjoyed it very much.

Harvesting Seed Corn

Pointed, Pertinent Suggestions for Securing Good High Germinating Hardy Seed.

If the farmers of North Dakota are to have a good corn crop in 1914, it is time to lay plans now. Every corn crop starts with the gathering of seed. The difference in yield of next year's corn crop resulting from seed gathered at the proper time in the proper way, and the seed as ordinarily handled, may mean many bushels per acre. The best time to gather seed corn is before the first killing frost, which in North Dakota usually comes between September 3 and 15. In a normal season if the corn is acclimated it should be far enough along toward maturity so that good seed can be gathered at this time. Most farmers know that to get best results from seed corn, it should be gathered before the corn is ready for husking.

When a large proportion of the earlier ears show the dent beginning to harden, the seed-corn day has arrived. The best part of the field should be worked first, examining every hill, with the eye at least. Whenever a desirable seed ear is found it should be gathered, providing it is produced on a hill that has a full stand of corn. No seed ear should be gathered from front hills of corn with less than three well developed stalks. It will be noticed that the larger and more fully developed ears are produced on the hills that have from one to two stalks. It is undesirable to use these ears for seed as their size can be accounted for from the fact that they had less competition in life, rather than inherent tendency to produce heavily.

Seed-corn gathering should be regarded as a specific duty that must be performed on a certain day, and as soon as that day comes all of the work must be dropped and all turned into the cornfield to gather seed. In no other way can the best results be secured.

Hanging and Storing Seed Corn.

Important as is setting apart a day to be known as seed-corn day, for gathering seed, there is the very important duty of curing and storing the selected ears of corn to preserve it from deterioration. Seed gathered early in the season in the proper way contains a very heavy percentage of moisture, therefore requires much care in curing or it may mild and spoil. The day corn is gathered it should be husked and put where there is free circulation of air. The ears should be so placed that no two are touching. This method of storing can be accomplished in several ways. The old fashion way of storing was to braid the ears in long strings and hang them in the attic. This method is very satisfactory. Another method that is sometimes used is to string the ears entirely of their stalks and to string them thru the middle with about twice, placing from ten to twenty ears to a string. The strings of ears are then hung in some place out of the sun and rain and where there is free circulation of air. Still another method that is sometimes employed is to hang poultry netting on the wall and place the ears one in each mesh. This gives free circulation all around each ear and is a very satisfactory method of drying. Sometimes fish-nails are driven in the wall and one ear placed on each nail. Where wall space is plentiful, this plan is conducive to good results.

After hanging in any of the above described methods for two or three months, the ears should be dry enough for storing. At this time they may be taken down and stored in a bin, providing they are not piled over two or three ears deep, or better they may be left hanging until ready for shelling in the spring. In either case they must not be exposed to a damp atmosphere as the dry ears readily absorb moisture from the air. During the cold weather freezing will injure the germ if it is damp, but not if it is thoroughly dry.

Good Roads in This District

Also Bridges Have Been Built to Last for Many Years. Com Feland Inspects Roads

For the first time in its history, our commissioner district has received its share of roads and bridges. This is largely due to the efforts of the commissioner who has presented the matter to the county board in such a clear succinct and logical way that the board was so impressed with reasonable demands that the order was given to build a number of miles of road and a few bridges in points most needed in the vicinity of Carson, Plasher, New Salem, DeVaul, Almont and other points.

All the roads have been built on most approved plans and by a man who thoroughly understands the work. Wide, founded and well-packed so that the surface water will flow off without channeling or standing in pools in the road, has been accomplished by John Neelson, Roadbuilder. He was appointed to that position on recommendation of Commissioner Felton and made good at all points. The bridges have in all places, been built to withstand the onslaughts of Time and also of the more terrific assaults of flood and ice. Every where only the very best material has entered into their construction and the permanent and stable structures

New Ideas for Handy Boys

By A. NEELY HALL
Author of "Handicraft for Handy Boys," "The Boy Craftsman," etc.

AN ELECTRO-MAGNET DERRICK.

A great many interesting experiments can be made with an electro-magnet, and it can be used in the construction of a number of home-made toys, among which is the electro-magnet derrick shown in the illustration. Lots of fun can be had with this derrick in hoisting nails and other small pieces of hardware from the floor to a table top, and as the "boom" or arm of the derrick can be swung from side to side, and raised and lowered, loads can be swung from place to place in just the same way as with large derricks. The derrick can be used for loading and unloading your toy wagons, cars and trains of cars, provided, of course, you use iron or steel of some sort for your loads. It is easy enough to get nails, tacks, screw-eyes and odd pieces of hardware for the purpose.

An electro-magnet consists of a center core of soft iron encased in a coil of wire, through which an electric current is passed. The core of iron and wire becomes magnetic and remains so just so long as the current is allowed to flow through the coil, and while in this condition will attract metal in the same way as any permanent magnet.

The construction of an electro-magnet is very simple. You will need a machine bolt or carriage bolt, 2 1/2 or 3 inches long and 1/2 inch in diameter for the core, some insulated electric bell copper wire for the coil, some cardboard and paper, and a battery cell. Cut three cardboard washers a trifle larger diameter than the bolt-head (Fig. 3), and slip these over the bolt as shown in Fig. 4—one at the head end, the other at the nut end. Slip one end of the wire between the washers at the nut end, allowing 4 or 5 inches of the end to project for connections (Fig. 4). Then starting at that end wind the wire around the bolt, keeping the turns even and pressed close against the preceding turns. When the other end of the bolt has been reached, wind back to the nut end; then wind back to the

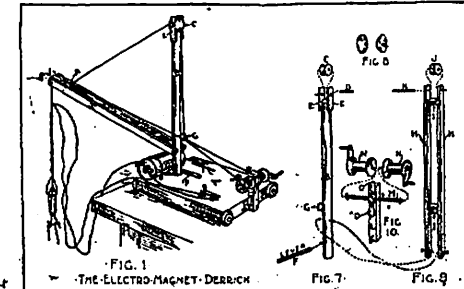

to a hole bored in the base. Fig. 7 shows a detail of the mast. The pulley upon its upper end (C) is made of two ends of a spool nailed together (Fig. 8), and it turns upon the axle D, which slips through holes in the plates E nailed to the end of the mast. The lever B which is a hole in the mast, close to the platform. This is used to swing the boom from side to side. Screw-eyes G is placed several inches above F to serve the purpose of a pulley to guide the hoisting cables.

Fig. 9 shows a detail of the boom. Cut the side sticks H 18 inches long, and fasten between them the separator I, which should be just long enough to allow clearance for the spool pulley J. The pulley is mounted on the shaft K. Screw the lower ends of the boom to the mast at a point 3/4 inches above the base.

The windlass for raising the derrick boom, and for hoisting the loads, is shown in detail in Fig. 10. Bore a hole through the upright L for the shaft M to stick through, and cut shaft M enough smaller than the spool drums N so they will turn easily. Fasten a crank and handle to one end of each spool as shown. Drive brads through each end of the shaft to prevent the drums from sliding off. Cut a notch in the inner flange of each spool, as shown, and give the "pawls" O in the positions shown so they may be thrown into the notches to lock the windlass (Fig. 1).

Use a strong wrapping twine for the cables. Fasten one end of the cable for raising the boom to a nail (Fig. 1), and run this cord up over the mast pulley, then down through screw-eye G, and over to one drum. Tie it securely to the drum so it will not slip around. The other cable should be tied to the nut of the magnet as shown in Fig. 1, run up over the boom pulley, then through screw-eye G, and tied to the second drum.

Fig. 1 shows how a dry battery can be strapped to the base board, for supplying current to the electro-magnet, and how the wires that connect the bolt-head end a second time, and back to the nut end; and so on until four, six or eight layers of wire have been wound in place. An even number of layers will bring the free end of the wire back to the nut end. Slip the end between the two washers, and turn the nut tight so as to hold the two ends of the wire in place (Fig. 6). If a small hole is pierced through the inner washer, the wire ends can be run through instead of over its edges. A piece of paper or cloth glued around the coil will give it a finished appearance and protect the insulation of the wire.

magnet, switch and battery can be twisted around the hoisting cable, part way, and the remainder of the length allowed to hang. Be sure to cut the wire long enough to run up by mounting the base upon spool would as shown in Fig. 1, your boom derrick can be moved along a table-top. It is probably unnecessary to explain that a load is picked up by throwing over the pawls to the contact point and clearing the circuit, and that it is dropped as soon as the switch lever leaves the contact point. Waiting at the Church.
In the spring anything can happen. Even "Waiting at the Church" will come true.

It did come true in Frankfort just a day or two ago. The wedding was Polish. At least the bride's party was Polish. But groom there was none to see. What he might have been, none could tell. But boy the bride was near-chastity. And she gradually, out of all the silly, slavish hubbub, the feeling of gloom did grow; it was terrible. Despair began to sweep each face like a flood. The usual observer hurried on. And hereafter he will never again sit by the church on a hurried night without a real clutch at his heart.—Philadelphia Record.

ERECTION OF COW STALLS AND MANGERS

Cow Stall and Manger.

(By R. M. DOLIVE, Professor of Agricultural Engineering, North Dakota Agricultural College.)

The mangers used in up-to-date barns vary considerably in shape and size, dependent upon the ideas of the owner, but whatever the difference in design the consensus of opinion seems to be that concrete is the best material for this construction. The design shown in the illustration is simple to construct and meets every requirement. As shown, it is 20 inches wide and 6 inches deep. The retaining wall between the manger and stalls, while high enough to prevent the waste of feed, is not so high as to catch the hay, is the design of the manger is on a level with the cow's feet, which is the natural height at which she procures her food when grazing. The width is sufficient to prevent cows from throwing hay out of reach and the feed tray floor is on a level with the top of the manger and sloping toward it, which makes feeding very convenient and the alley easy to clean. The bottom is so shaped that a minimum amount of water is required to permit cows to drink out of the manger.

The manger should be made at the same times as the floor, and with concrete and facing of the same proportions. The construction is very simple. A plank set on edge on the stall side and two templates for the concrete and the other for the facing—is all that is necessary. The templates are made from boards cut in the desired shape, the one for the concrete being made larger so as to allow for the overhead facing. The bottom of the manger is 50 feet, so that water may be readily drained out of the manger at the lower end.

Manure gutters, like mangers, differ in size and shape, but in general the design shown in plate 1 is most common. This gutter is 6 inches deep and 14 inches wide. Some cattle men prefer gutters 15 to 18 inches wide and only 4 inches deep, still others place the stall as much as 18 inches and the manure alley 6 inches above the gutter bottom. In order to facilitate the draining away of the liquids a three-inch U-shaped channel is sometimes made in the bottom of the gutter next to the manure alley, but this is not the best where a slope is given the gutter bottom.

A small water-tight liquid manure cistern may be provided outside the barn into which the gutter drains, but if a manure-trap is used the cistern should be connected to the cistern by means of a drain pipe effectively trapped like the soil pipe in a house and so arranged that the trap may be easily cleaned.

Although the question of economy and first cost must not be lost sight of, should first be considered from the standpoint of the humanitarians and no-go-meat or bone-meat should be considered upon which it is made so as to insure the greatest possible comfort for the animals. This is no mere sentiment, but sound business and good economy expenditure in this direction money invested. This is true for types of cattle, but more especially so for the dairy cow, which is a very sensitive creature, highly susceptible to discomfort. If she is kept clean and comfortable all her energy will be devoted to the production of milk, while if her quarters are filthy and her treatment is poor, she will be forced to a certain portion of her energy and that lost. This has been conclusively proven time and again by the almost fabulous yields of milk or butter fat from cows when given ideal care and treatment.

The type of stall which most nearly meets the requirements of comfort and sanitation is undoubtedly the approved form of the tubular steel stalls with tubular steel stanchions, supported by chains and concrete floor as shown. All required dimensions are given in the drawing with the exception of the stall, which is 8 feet 6 inches.

The stanchion is so arranged that its lower end may swing nearly a foot in any direction while the upper end is almost equally movable. This wide latitude permits the cow to move her head freely from side to side, allowing her to rest, stand up, or lie down in a natural position almost as easily and unconstrainedly as if she were untied.

This type of stall is intended especially for dairy cattle, but may be adapted for beef cattle as well. For beef cattle double stall 7 or 8 feet wide are considered best, and on account of their greater size, the distance from manger to gutter should be increased to five feet.

HARDY BREED OF DAIRY COWS

Dutch Belted Cattle Are Easily Kept and Well Adapted to Northwest Range Conditions.

(By G. L. MARTIN, Professor of Dairying, North Dakota Agricultural College.)

The Dutch Belted cattle get their name from the characteristic color markings of the breed, which is a white belt around the middle with a rest of the body black. This breed originated in North Holland and was controlled by the nobility for a long time, who have kept the breed pure for over 200 years.

Dutch Belted Bull (Duke of Ralph 235) and Cow (Lady, Aldine 124).

two breeds are very similar. The mature Dutch Belt cow will average a little more than 1,000 pounds. They are a strong, vigorous breed, able to stand heavy work, with well developed nervous temperament and a quiet disposition. The cows of this breed are claimed to fatten well when past milking age and make beef of excellent quality. They are of large and make veal of very fine quality.

The Dutch Belt are not so common in America as many of the other breeds, except in the eastern part of our country they are found in numbers, where they have food business reputation as milkers. The milk from this breed averages about 12 per cent fat and 10 per cent solids. One breeder reports an average of 3,000 pounds of milk per year from his herd of 30 cows.

This breed of dairy cattle is hardy, easily kept, and well adapted to range conditions of the northwest. They will rank well with other dairy breeds when handled intelligently.

Intelligent Repair Man.
A woman had called at the electrician's shop to say that a repair man ought to come up to her house, as the electric bell would not ring. A day passed and the repair man did not make his appearance, so she ventured down to the shop again.
"How is it you didn't send a man to fix my bell?" she asked.

She held it exactly as she did when she did powder her nose—quite close to that very pleasing, if slightly tilted, feature.

BULGARS STARVE PRISONERS

FRENCH WRITER SAYS TERROR IS NOW WASTE PLACE.

Turkey Opens Way for Negotiations Looking to Peace of the Balkans.

London, Aug. 26.—Morris Lott, the French writer, draws an appalling indictment of the Bulgarians in Turkey. Among other things, he says: "The Bulgarians have made of Thrace a desert, surpassing in stultification everything I had been told and all that I imagined. With what fury have these Christian liberators worked in order to accomplish so much destruction in a few months!"

M. Lott confirms the story of several thousand Turkish prisoners being herded on an island and then allowed to starve to death by the Bulgarians, who who survived starvation being massacred, and protests in the strongest terms against Europe permitting Adrianople to be handed back to the Bulgarians.

He says to do so would be a crime and expresses the belief that the Russians have been misled and that when they know all the monstrous truth they will realize that to take up the cause of this small, deceitful and ferocious people of the Slav family would be to soil their history with indelible stains.

The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Mail declares that the powers have been unable to agree on any plan to coerce Turkey. France opposes any financial pressure, while Germany objects to moral pressure. Neither Austria nor Russia appears inclined to assist Bulgaria and there is little doubt, according to this correspondent, that Turkey will retain Adrianople.

New York, Aug. 25.—Ruth Hamilton, the 17-year-old Boston girl, who received a bullet wound near the heart when she and Charles Rice, aged 20, tried to carry out a death pact Wednesday midnight, was breathing the last gasp before she died. As she had just entered her fifteenth birthday in St. John's hospital, semi-conscious, she called to her "dear" lover and said: "I want to die and join you." It came out that the motive for the death pact was the girl's worry over recent illness, and a recent injury which Rice sustained.

LIND ON HIS WAY BACK FROM MEXICO

GAMBODA SAYS "AU REVU," BUT NOTHING ABOUT HUERTA QUITTING HIS POST.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE AT AN END

Rumor Says Felix Diaz Has Been Recalled From Mission to Japan—O'Donoghue Left in Charge of American Embassy.

BULLETIN.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Eleventh hour developments in the Mexican situation postponed delivery of a message to congress until this afternoon and indicated that the Huerta government, after all, might withdraw or modify its rejection of the proposals of the United States. At the request of Senator Gamboda, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, which was based upon supplementary suggestions by John Lind, advisor to the American embassy in Mexico City, President Wilson consented to postpone his address to congress until 1 o'clock this afternoon.

It was officially stated in that connection that in no case would the United States withdraw from the basic principles of its position, paramount among which is a consistent refusal to recognize Huerta.

American Proposals to Mexico.

Cessation of hostilities and a definite armistice. An early and free election. Huerta to bind himself not to be a candidate. Agreement by all parties to abide by the results of the election.

Mexico City, Aug. 27.—With the departure of John Lind, personal envoy of President Wilson, from the capital via Vera Cruz, for Washington, the negotiations for Mexican peace are, to outward appearances, at least, just where they were when Mr. Lind arrived a fortnight ago.

Mr. Lind called on Foreign Minister Gamboda to say goodbye, but there was nothing in their conversation regarding the resumption of negotiations or to indicate that Mexico would recede from its position.

Mr. Lind will sail from Vera Cruz at an early date, presumably on a battleship. It is expected that William Bayard Hale, who has been in Mexico City in official capacity, will accompany Mr. Lind or leave soon afterward.

Rumors persist that General Trevino, who has been summoned to the capital, will become provisional president, but confirmation is lacking. General Huerta has called in most of the retired officers and many of those on detached service to report for duty.

Diaz Recalled From Japan. General Felix Diaz, who started for Japan as special ambassador, is also said to have received a summons to return to the capital.

As an indication of the cordial personal relations established by Mr. Lind with General Huerta, the president placed his private car at the disposal of Mr. Lind, who accepted the proffer and will occupy the car on the trip to Vera Cruz.

Washington.—Negotiations so far as Mr. Lind is concerned have been terminated. The United States will receive any further proposals through Charge d'Affaires O'Donoghue, of the American embassy.

The policy of the United States, as outlined to the members of the two congressional committees of foreign relations at a conference at the White House by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan. The president's message received practically unanimous approval.

The further course of this government will be one of non-interference with the Huerta until the signing of a peace treaty and pressure of foreign governments will exert a moral sanction that will ultimately bring about peace in Mexico.

The message makes it plain that there will be no lifting of the embargo on arms, that no faction of government in Mexico will be allowed to receive munitions of war from the United States, and that the president is prepared to increase the border patrol to enforce this policy.

New York, Aug. 27.—William H. Brown, who had been in the city since his return from Arizona, and was expected to be in the city for some time, is expected to go to Oyster Bay later today.

MRS. PANKHURST

Mrs. Pankhurst, leader of the British militant suffragists, who has been imprisoned so many times and recently fled to France, intends to visit America very soon.

FREE RAW BILL IS APPROVED

DEBATE ON THE TARIFF MEASURE IN THE SENATE.

McComber Succeeds in Holding Up Action on Meat and Wheat.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Debate on the tariff measure in the senate, which is sitting as a "committee of the whole," was nullified by ratification of the free list, with reservations for new commodities, to be considered later; agreement by the senate finance committee to consider an amendment by Senator Kenyon of Iowa which would automatically transfer trust controlled articles to the free list; discussion of free print paper and the paper schedule and a clash on labor conditions and wages to the New England and Southern cotton mills.

So rapid was the progress in consideration of the free list that Democratic leaders were led to predict that the bill may pass by the middle of next week.

Free raw wool was among the proposals in the free list approved by the senate in "committee of the whole," but this will come up again on substitutes offered in the senate proper.

Free meat, cattle, sheep, swine and wheat were passed over at the request of Senator McComber of North Dakota.

An amendment to the foreign meat inspection clause was proposed to the finance committee by the bureau of animal industry, which suggested the original clause providing that an inspection of foreign meat equal to the inspection of American meat should be "sufficient." The amendment is designed to clarify the clause by providing that such foreign inspection must also enjoy the same rights and privileges as accorded American meat inspected under the inspection law of 1906.

Strike Zone is Quoted.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 27.—With the full membership of the Pennsylvania state police on duty in the strike zones, many men who have not been working during the last several months for fear of molestation at the hands of strikers and pickets, returned to the shops. Proved Equal to Personal Sacrifice When it Was Question of Dis- semination of Scandal.

"My dear," says the mother to the daughter, who is lying down with a sick headache and a box of choocoles, "here is a letter from your Uncle George, saying that Lucy Toke, who is away at school, has received a medal of honor for her perfection in art and music. It would be very nice of you to put on your hat and run down the street and tell the other girls."

"O, mamma, I feel too miserable to walk a step."

The mother, opening another letter, glances at it, gulps with surprise and exclaims:

"Here's a letter from Adm. Jennie. She says Miss Toke has been dirt- ing and carrying on dreadfully all summer at that hotel in Canada."

"The horrid thing!" exclaims the daughter, sitting up and reaching for her hat. "Come, mamma. Let's go make some calls."

NEARLY CRAZY WITH RASH

Dryden, Ore.—Traveling through the woods one day I was looking at and handling a little vine. When I got home I felt an itching and burning and the first thing I saw my face was all swollen up. The poison oak affected my face, hands, arms and chest and it disgusted me very much. My face and neck were broken out and itched until I was nearly crazy. I had to walk the floor at night and could not sleep and eat. My mother brought me a box of Cuticura Ointment in the house and I washed with the Cuticura Soap freely and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. I got relief at the first application and then I slept like a child. In three weeks I was perfectly cured. (Signed) E. H. DeGraze, Mar. 25, 1913.

SOCIALISTS QUELL TROUBLE

Members of Party Assist Officials to End I. W. W. Street Disturbances.

Minot.—Minot authorities are co-operating, as much as possible, with the activities of the city officers in an effort to quell the labor troubles which have prevailed over a period of two weeks and in a measure they have been successful.

In a recent conference, in which the city and county officials and the socialist local were represented, the various sides of the controversy were presented and it was generally admitted that changes in the plan of dealing with the situation were needed.

A call by Arthur LeGuerre to the socialists of Minot, asking that they refrain from attempting street carcer addresses, was the result of the conference, and this fact has been the means of bringing about quiet conditions for the last few days.

Further interesting developments, however, will follow the two weeks' troubles. The day following Dewey Dorman's appearance on the witness stand at which time he was alleged to have declared himself an under- lever in the United States and the state constitution as well as in his oath as a city commissioner, a recall petition was circulated, and it has been generously circulated. Mr. Dorman is street commissioner of the city.

At a meeting of the socialists, attended by about 200, a movement was started to recall other members of the city commission and petitions with that object in view were prepared. Some of the petitions have not yet been filed, and it may be probable that the recall petition will be avoided if the officials can come to some further agreement on the situation.

President N. Davis of the city commission, has issued a questionnaire defining the situation created in the city. He declares the fight has not been against free speech, but against the kind of speech that has been indulged in. Also he contends that the Minot police officials have certain authority over public speaking.

In addition to the men who have been jailed and who are willing to work, the Minot Commercial club has established a free employment bureau. Through this bureau more than sixty of the men who were arrested during the recent disturbances have been provided with jobs, and farmers in the Minot district are having no trouble securing help.

Many Not I. W. W. Members.

Through a wire bureau it was developed that many of the men arrested were not really I. W. W. agitators, but that they simply fell in line with others, more for excitement than anything else.

Sheldon Gets Sheep From Montana.

Sheldon.—Sixteen carloads of Montana sheep are to be shipped to Sheldon where they will be turned loose in the stubble fields and allowed to fatten before they are shipped to the St. Paul market for sale. T. J. McCully and C. J. Shaw are farmers interested in the deal, and they expect to net themselves a tidy little profit by the time the sheep are sold. The large sheep ranches in Montana to make the prospective purchase and it is expected that about 4,000 head will be bought.

New Laws Are In Force.

Marmarth.—To insure state inspection of all grain shipments from Montana points to eastern terminals, Montana state authorities have stationed at this place an inspector whose duty it is to grade all grain loaded at points east of Miles City. This action is the result of new grain inspection laws passed by the last session of the Montana legislature, and is intended to serve as a check against possible grain discrimination on the part of elevators in eastern terminals. W. J. Bremner, of Lovelock, Mont., has received the appointment at this place.

D.—To be thrown from a horse almost fifty years ago, a woman yesterday escaped being struck by its deadly fangs was the experience of Mrs. Henry Skinner, wife of a rancher living in this vicinity. Catching her horse, she took the brute reining and, with them as a weapon, she killed the rattlesnake and killed it.

COURTHOUSE WILL BE BUILT

Judge Frank Flak Dissolves Restraining Order Against the Mountzill Board.

Stanley.—Palermo's effort to stop the construction of the new Mountzill county court house in this city, pending the outcome of a suit which has been commenced to vindicate his honor, has as its direct object the promotion of Palermo's campaign for county seat. Judge Frank Flak of the district court, that had been issued against the board of county commissioners, by which that board has been restrained from letting the building contract.

The complaint on which the suit is to declare, the objection illegal, will be further litigation over this matter, as Palermo people will contend that the appeal serves to stay action on the part of the board in letting the contract.

Following Judge Flak's refusal to make the temporary restraining order permanent, the plaintiffs filed a bond for an appeal. Unless there will be further litigation over this matter, as Palermo people will contend that the appeal serves to stay action on the part of the board in letting the contract.

IS RAISING RUSSIAN CORN

Farmer Secures Seed From Native Land and is Pleased With Returns.

Janestown.—Getting corn from Russia may sound like a curious thing to say in this county. Fred Roisin secured a small supply of seed corn from his native land in Russia and planted about a quarter of an acre. The stalks are shorter than five rows, but the ears are remarkably well developed and the yield promises to be well. Mr. Roisin has been induced to save every ear for seed for next season.

The corn originally came from southern Asia to Russia where it was cultivated for years, until it matured even in northern Russia in the short crop season that prevails there. It is this for north corn from which the supply of seed corn.

Mystery Surrounds Burial.

Leadville.—Edgar Allan Sloane has been buried here. Who he was or why he had selected Leadville as the location for his final resting place may never be known. He was killed at Leadville, Cal., by a bullet which was believed to have been fired from a trap company held him. He had made a sister and two cousins the chief beneficiaries, and there was a provision that he be buried here. He was a Mason and an Odd Fellow. No resident of this place can recall the man, not even the earliest pioneers. Telegrams have been sent the people named as his beneficiaries, but no trace of them can be found.

Frightened Driver Drowns.

Beach.—Becoming frightened when the team he was driving started down stream, Roy Brown, formerly of this place, but more recently of Bangs, Mont., sprang from the bus at a jumping away and drowned. The stream was swollen after the recent rains and the horses could not ford it. Brown's companion stuck to the rig and was taken ashore. Brown had come here for a visit with relatives.

Alleged White Slaver Caught.

New Rockford.—Alvin Brandenberg, wanted by the authorities of Aberdeen, S. D., on a white slavery charge, was arrested at a farm house west of this city by Sheriff Fahner. He and his alleged victim were employed by the farmer for the harvest and threshing season. The girl is being cared for by local persons, while Brandenberg is in jail awaiting the arrival of the South Dakota officials.

Mind Deranged; Lasse Hinnsoff.

Crowfoot.—The development of a man wandering in the fields near here apparently in a deranged state of mind, and brought him back to town. He was taken to the county jail where he was examined by a physician and found that he was suffering from delirium tremens. The man stated that he had started for the harvest fields and that he was drinking heavily on the train.

Lightning Kills Farmer.

Kennal.—Robert O'Neill, a farmer living near the northwest of Kennal, was killed at 5 p. m., Thursday, while driving a binder in his field. O'Neill was making his last round with the machine, driving some out on the flat when the bolt struck. One of the horses was killed outright and the other three were stunned. O'Neill was about 35 years old and is survived by a wife and two children.

Good Old Hymn at the Wrong Time.

While Billy Sunday was holding one of his famous meetings in Wichita, Kan., his company of workers seemed to find in a foremost physician of the town a subject for special and unusual effort. A group had surrounded the doctor, and just as he seemed to be the point of yielding to their exhortations, a seabus started in the audience struck up; "The Great Physician Now is Near." A ripple ran through the audience, the doctor's face brightened and, Evangelist Sunday himself, with difficulty repressed a smile. "It is added that the medicine man did not 'come out' that evening.

Witchcraft.—In many parts of the world—Greece, for instance—the "believer in witchcraft still gets hold, by hook or by crook, of hair, nail parings and so forth from an enemy's head and hands and burns, buries or does something else with them in order to entail unpleasant consequences upon that enemy. And universal folklore reveals the concern of savages to dispose of their own hair and nail clippings to prevent an enemy from getting at them. Australian native girls, having had a lock of hair stolen from their expected speedy death as a certainty.

Effecting a Compromise.

The president of a western college was spending some time in a large eastern city. In order to study conditions in the city he occasionally took his meals in the poorer restaurants. One morning the waitress brought him some breakfast food that was wormy. He called her attention to the fact. The waitress said she would go into the kitchen and see what could be done about it. In a few moments she returned and said: "Since the breakfast food is wormy, you may have it for five cents."—Harper's Magazine.
