The corn exhibited by M. Peck was of the variety known as Minnesota White Dent, No. 23. The seed was planted June 2nd, and the corn had fully matured by the first of this month, yet, was not picked until September 20 and taken to the contest.

The other exhibitors had some very fine corn but Mr. W. A. Peterson who did the judging, pronounced this sample the best and awarded the prize.

The winning ears will be taken to the Slope Fair and will be entered there for honors against the entire slope's production.

N. D. Industrial Exposition.

Interest over the state is now centered in the coming North Dakota Industrial Exposition to be held in Bismarck Oct. 7 to 19. General Manager Gilbreath has succeeded in securing a large number of exhibits for the big show and indications are that the attendance will be larger than at any two previous expositions. Premium lists can be secured by writing Commissioner of Agriculture and Labor Gilbreath at Bismarck.

Indians at Exposition.

Arrangements have been made for a large delegation of Indians from the Standing Rock reservation to attend the North Dakota Industrial Exposition at Bismarck Oct. 7 to 19. They will bring with them an exhibit of their prowess in the field of agriculture that will be a revelation to those who have not watched the progress of the past few years. They will also provide some of the entertainment for the visitors. Aside from the extraordinarily fine showing of the resources of the state that has already been ascertained General Manager Gilbreath, he has not neglected the entertainment feature and has provided for the presence of several bands and a fine vaudeville show in the exposition building and auditorium. There will also be a number of street attractions and parades and other features on special days, a number of which have been arranged for. Obituary.

Last Sunday the remains of R. M. Wilman late assistant county Superintendent of schools was conveyed to his final resting place followed by the largest crowd of mourners that ever attended a funeral at Sims. The people gathered at the Wilman residence about 2 o'clock p. m. and a short sermon was conducted by the Rev. Breen. About 3 o'clock the procession, consisting of 81 rigs and extending over a half mile slowly went its way to the Lutheran church of which the deceased was a staunch member. As the pall bearers entered the church with the coffin the school children, under the leadership of Miss Hilmi Cass sang "Nearer My God to Thee." After that Rev. Breen read a short biography of the deceased member; spoke a few words of condolence to the bereaved family and spoke in general of the uncertainty of this life and the necessity and of being prepared to be called away at any time. After this, Mr. Hanson spoke a few very appropriate words in English after which an opportunity was given for all to view for the last time the face of a dear friend, a loving husband and an affectionate father.

The Hearse of A. B. Rief of New Salem was engaged for the occasion and the pall bearers were C. P. O'Rourke and W. F. Lorin of Mandan and P. R. Peterson, T. Thompson, and A. Holritz of Sims, and E. W. Hyde of Almont.

Lines.

The day has passed, the night has come;
The shadows around him fall,
Why did you tarry turn the year
To speak that word his soul to cheer
To gladden him while he was near,
Instead of flowers on his pall?

Why tend your heart in sorrowing
When his soul Life's bonds has riven,
Why mourn 'neath that beetle his bier,
Why gaze on him thru falling tear,
—You did not speak while he was here,
Why to his clay are tributes given?

You claim him now a worthy friend,
You left him much alone;
And when his heart was sorely tried,
You did not pause to seek his side
And ask his sorrows to divide,
Nothing for this can e'er atone.

Now, when his soul the clay has freed,
And he with us shall meet no more;
Reverse his life for what it meant,
Rejoice that he some sinner lent,
To those beneath their burdens bent,
Who'er he departed from this shore.

The time will come when all shall pass
Thru Death's fell portals dark;
So live toward all thru passing days
That living lips a song of praise
To him on high, will softly raise,
For you, e'er you embark.

Cash Prizes Attractive.

The fact that the management of the North Dakota Industrial Exposition has been fit to add many cash prizes to the premiums offered seems to have stimulated interest in the big show this year.

Where are generous cash premiums offered for all sorts of exhibits and many entries have already been made. Aside from the individual showings there will be exhibits made by many counties, by railroads operating in the state, by various institutions and many firms of manufacturers both inside and outside of the state. The show taken as a whole will be a record breaker and an eye-opener. Premium lists can be secured by writing to Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Gilbreath.

Missouri Slope Fair at Mandan.

Mr. Connolly Assures The Farmers That They Will See The Largest Exhibition of Farm And Dairy Products At This Fair. That They Ever See.

Secretary I. H. Connolly, of the Missouri Slope Fair, announces that this year's exhibition will be the best ever held in Mandan. The fair will be open on September 30th, and close on October 3rd. In the line of horse races it might be said that the local association is now a member of a newly created western North Dakota circuit, which insures it of having a large number of horses at the fair than ever before. For those who like good horse racing the association guarantees that they will see it at this year's fair.

Indians from the Standing Rock reservation and the Port Berthold reservation will be in attendance and will camp on the grounds. The Indian features each year are among the most interesting for the visitors.

Mr. Connolly assures the farmers that they will see the largest display of farm and dairy products that have been gathered together at any fair this year. The association expects tremendous attendance and is preparing to accommodate the visitors.

Corn Is King.

Corn will surely be one of the big features of the North Dakota Industrial Exposition to be held in Bismarck this year from October 7 to 19. There will be many and generous exhibits and someone is going to walk away with a large amount of money as a result of their efforts in the corn raising game. The best way to find out all about it will be to send to Commissioner of Agriculture Gilbreath at Bismarck for a premium list.

J. P. MORGAN'S VACATION

John Pierpont Morgan, head of the most powerful financial interests in the world, has returned from his vacation.

He got one week this year. The junior office boy in the Morgan offices got three.

But if Mr. Morgan did happen to be limited to only a week's holiday he spent that in a true million-dollar fashion. With his family and some friends he made the cruise with the New York yacht club's botilla on his steam yacht, the Mermala.

For years—in fact, since he joined the yacht club in 1882—he has not missed a cruise. This annual affair has always been one of particular pleasure for him, because of his fondness for the sea. After the elder Morgan died, his son, shocked by the cares of business, did not see how he could spare the time for any vacation this summer. In other years since he entered the Morgan offices he had taken a month, and sometimes longer.

As the weeks passed into months the work of the head of the Morgan firm became more exacting, and instead of decreasing in volume it kept increasing. He despaired of taking any vacation at all. The other members of the firm came to him at the beginning of the summer to arrange for a schedule of vacations.

Mr. Morgan disposed of this question by explaining that he would not have time to take any vacation at all. But for this once the head of the firm was not the boss of the establishment. His partners told him very curtly that he was going to take a vacation whether he had time or not.

MOTHER'S AID IN SOCIAL FUNCTIONS

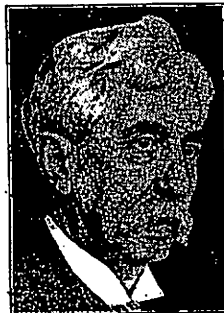

To close observers it seems apparent that Miss Margaret Wilson is destined to be more closely identified with Washington and its interests, to become, as it were, more of a national figure than her sisters.

Miss Jessie has already planned her fitting part in the actual setting of national fame which will continue to environ the others. If rumor prove true, her example in choosing a life partner is commendable. Her future husband is at the very outset of his career, just as her father was when her mother made the plunge into the unknown twenty-eight years ago.

Miss Eleanor, or, as she is known to her friends, Miss Neil, is the ideal young society woman, fond of dancing and a most graceful one, a fearless equestrienne, expert at golf and tennis—in a word, full of life and vigor, and it is a safe wager that she will not tarry long behind her sister Jessie. But in Miss Margaret are qualities entirely apart from the social side of existence. Naturally, she has been her mother's unflinching companion and during enforced absences of her parents from the rooftop she has been the general supervisor and director.

CHIEF OF ENGINEERS OF THE ARMY

Brig. Gen. William A. Rosell a few days ago relieved Brig. Gen. William H. Bizby at the war department of the duties of chief of engineers of the army. There were no special ceremonies connected with the transfer of the office. General Rosell subscribed to the regulation oath of office and received the officials of the bureau, including all the engineer officers on duty there. These officers at the same time took official leave of General Bizby, who made the introductions to the new chief. No other changes are expected to follow the induction of General Rosell for the reason that his incumbency will continue only until October 11 next, when he will be transferred to the retired list on account of age.

General Rosell is from Alabama and was graduated number two in the class of 1873, in which General Bizby was the star member. The new chief of engineers reached the grade of colonel of engineers in February, 1903, and was the senior officer of that grade when promoted to his present office.

NAMED AS MINISTER TO BALKANS

Destiny has played a pretty prank for Charles J. Vopicka of Chicago. The senate the other day confirmed his appointment as minister to the Balkan states—Serbia, Roumania and Bulgaria.

Mr. Vopicka was born in Bohemia in 1857. To him, as to many young men of that time, the United States seemed the land of promise. Stories of "streets lined with gold" were heard abroad, so young Vopicka, with a small store of experience to enable him to battle with the world, and unhampered by funds, sailed away from the land of his birth.

Now he will return, honored by his adopted country as its diplomatic envoy.

His appointment came at the end of a bitter fight waged upon him by anti-immigrationists.

Mr. Vopicka, after a brief business career in Chicago, has gained a name from fortune. The dream of his youth had come true—he had found that this was indeed the land of promise. He had become interested in several breweries and because of this his appointment was contested.

THAW'S LAWYERS AGREE ON METHOD

MORE THAN ELEVEN LAWYERS TO DIRECT FIGHT OF MAT. TEAWAN-FUGITIVE.

JUDGE PHASE WILL ARGUE

To Make Principal Presentation of Escaped Man's Contentions—Mother and Brother Arrive on Monday.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 23.—Eleven lawyers from four states and the Dominion of Canada are in Concord, and more are expected to be on the way here to help Harry K. Thaw resist the efforts of the state of New York to obtain his return to the Mat-tewan asylum.

All Lawyers Agree. Without a dissenting voice, these attorneys declared that there was perfect agreement among them as to the presentation of their case when William T. Jerome of New York will appear before Governor Perkins in behalf of the petition for extradition.

While no official statement was made by Thaw or any of his lawyers, it is understood that the principal, if not the only argument in Thaw's behalf, will be made by Judge William H. Chase of Concord. Besides Judge Chase, Thaw's legal array includes W. C. McKean of Montreal, former Governor Rione of Pennsylvania, Messrs. Grossman, Olmstead, Vorhaus and Zeig of New York, Joseph O'Connell of Boston and Messrs. Harter, Shurtleff and Dunigan of New Hampshire.

The fugitive expects his mother and brother here. A continuation of bad weather kept Thaw indoors yesterday. He answered his voluminous correspondence, read the law, and conferred with his legal force.

NEGRO SHOTS JAIL KEEPER

Convict Attempts to Escape, Commits Murder and is Badly Wounded Plunging through Door.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 23.—In a desperate encounter with a negro convict, who was trying to escape, Eli B. Steiner, a deputy keeper at the New Jersey state prison, was shot and killed by the prisoner. The convict William Diamond, was shot twice in the arm by Steiner and is in the prison hospital. He will be charged with murder.

Diamond and another convict, James Johnson, also a negro, had planned to escape and asked to see Dr. Craun, the prison physician, claiming illness. As the men were released from their cells by Deputy Keeper Piperson, Johnson grabbed the keeper his revolver. He opened fire on Steiner, who returned the fire, hitting Diamond twice.

In his attempt to see Johnson back out, he was taken to the hospital.

Strike Injunction is Scored. Calumet, Mich. Saturday night by Circuit Judge O'Brien, prohibiting picketing and parading by copper mine strikers and interfering with women workers at a mass meeting of strikers. It was denounced as unconstitutional in that it was a restraint of liberty, freedom of movement and the right to parade peacefully. The injunction will be obeyed in doubt.

INDIANA MAN GETS PICK AT FT. PECK

LUCKY NUMBERS IN RESERVATION DRAWING ARE SELECTED.

40,299 CONTESTANTS IN ALL

Cost Applicant Will Have Second Choice—First Fifteen Names Selected From the Big Can.

Glasgow, Mont., Sept. 24.—True to the weather conditions at most of the previous land drawings conducted by the United States, Tuesday dawned cold and raw with all signs pointing to rain. Judge James W. Witten, the representative of the government in charge of the proceedings, the drawing arranged for the drawing in the Orpheum theater, the largest building in town, instead of in the open air.

Filed to Overflowing. The capacity of the place is over a thousand and long before the hour for the drawing, the place was packed, every seat being taken except the first three rows nearest the stage which had been reserved by order of Judge Witten so as to prevent spectators getting too close to the scene. Preparation had been made by a score of carpenters for the drawing, both in the open and in the theater, and to that end platforms had been constructed in both places.

At 9 a. m. the can containing the 40,299 envelopes, the total registrations since September 1 at the four points, Glasgow, Great Falls, Havre and Miles City, were taken to the theater and dumped upon the huge platform. Three men, acting under the orders of Judge Witten, then manipulated scoops for half an hour, giving the mass a thorough shifting.

Girls Draw Numbers. Judge Witten then introduced Zita Friedl, the 13-year-old daughter of Mayor Friedl, who with Hazel Hurd, another distinguished Glasgow girl, will alternate in picking out the envelopes throughout the drawing.

To the first named lass was given the honor of picking out the first number.

The first fifteen names drawn are as follows:

- No. 1—Samuel A. Crow, Hammond, Ind.
- No. 2—Thomas J. McBrady, Olympia, Wash.

Autoist Killed Woman; Jury Disagrees. Red Wing, Minn., Sept. 24.—The jury in the case of Ralph H. Babcock charged with manslaughter in the second degree for causing the death of Mrs. Alfred Anderson, reported to Judge Johnson at 10 a. m. Tuesday that it was hopelessly deadlocked on a verdict. The jurymen were discharged. They had been in continuous session from 4:45 p. m. Monday until 10 a. m. Tuesday. The last ballot taken was nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

They Hadn't Been Wasted.

"Oh, Mrs. Broom!" The sad-eyed young poet was calling to his boarding mistress. "Did you throw away those blank sheets I left on my table this morning?" "I did, Mr. Scribbles," came the apologetic reply; "weren't they waste paper?" "Not yet," returned the poet, sadly; "I hadn't written anything on them."

Fishing for Fish.

Many people there are who delight in just fishing for fish. Such a one was John Quincy Adams. The story was told by one of his clients, whose name was to be "tried" on a certain morning, that he could not get his counsel to leave his fishing boat except long enough to write a note to the judge which read: "Dear Judge—For the sake of Isaac Walton please continue my case until Friday. The small are biting, and I can't leave." And the judge having read the note, announced to the court: "Mr. Adams is detained on important business."—Christian Herald.

SYNOPSIS

Fran arrives at Hamilton Gregory's home in Littleburg, but finds him absent. She repairs to a boarding-house where she meets Miss Sapphira, who tells her the story of how she became interested in Fran and how she was seduced by him. She tells her of her father's death and how she inherited the property. She tells her of her marriage to Gregory and how she was deceived by him. She tells her of her escape from him and how she found him again. She tells her of her present position and how she is resolved to protect her daughter from him.

It was the close of a July day that Hamilton Gregory left his house resolved, at any cost—save that of exposure—to experience once more the only pleasure life held in reserve for him: nearness to Grace. She might be at the store, since all shops were to remain open late, in hope of reaping some advantage from the gaudy of mankind. In a word, Littleburg was in the grip of its first street fair.

Before going down-town, Gregory strolled casually about the head of the Clinton boarding-house. Only Miss Sapphira was on the green veranda. Miss Sapphira, recognizing Gregory, waved a solemn greeting, and he felt reassured—or he was always struck by Robert would "tell." He pushed his way nearer.

"Is Miss Noir here?" Gregory asked in a strained voice, the confusion hid in the oddest way.

"But I have been dying to be near you, to talk to you."

"No, she's down-town—but not at any show, you may be sure. She's late at the store because—well, you've heard Abbott Ashton has been away a long time."

"Well, he's been off two or three weeks some time, nobody knows unless it's Bob, and Bob won't tell anything any more. Abbott wrote her to be home tonight, and Bob drove over to Blimtown to meet him in the survey, so Miss Grace is alone down there." She smiled contemptuously. "Yes—I look for Bob and Abbott too just any minute." She added, saying the crowd—"I saw Fran on the street, long and merry ago." Her accent was that of condescension. Like a rock she sat, letting the fickle populace drift by to minister show and make do. The severity of her double chin said they might all go thither—she would not.

This was also Gregory's point of view as he stood at the foot of the coast clear, he passed to say, "I am sorry that Fran seems to have lost all reason over this carnival company. If she would show half as much interest in her soul's welfare—"

The bookkeeper's desk was in a gallery near the ceiling of the Clinton grocery store; one looked thence through a picket-fence, down upon the only floor. Doubtless Grace, thus looking, saw him coming. When he reached her side, he was breathless, partly from the struggle through the maze, and partly from excitement of fancied security.

She was posting up the ledger, and made no sign of recognition until he called her name. "Mr. Clinton is not here," she said demurely. "Can I do anything for you?"

He admired her calm courtesy. If at the same time she could have been reserved and yielding he would have found the impossible combination perfect. Of course it was impossible; he determined to preserve her angelic purity in imagination, and to restore her womanly charm to actual being.

"How can you receive me so cordly," he said impulsively, "when I've not seen you for weeks?"

"Mr. Clinton is not here," she answered impassively. "But I have been dying to be near you, to talk to you—"

"Stop!" she held up her hand. "You should know that Mr. Clinton and I are—"

"Grace!" he groaned. She whispered, her face suddenly growing pale. "Are engaged." The late-act was beyond her supposed strength.

"Engaged!" he echoed, as if he had pronounced one of the world's great tragedies. "Then you will give yourself to that man—yourself, Grace, that beautiful girl without love? It's a crime! Don't commit the horrible blunder that's ruined my life. See what wretchedness has come to me."

"Then you think, very slowly, 'that I ought to let Fran ruin my whole life because your wife has ruined yours? Then you think that after I have been driven out of the house to make room for Fran, that I ought to stay single because you married unwisely?'"

"Grace, don't say you are driven out."

"What do you call it? A resignation?"

"Grace!—we have only a few moments to be alone. For pity's sake, kindly and use another tone—a tone like the dear days when you were by my side. . . . We may never be together again."

She looked at him with the same repellent expression, and spoke in the same bitter tone. "Well, suppose you're not? And that Fran will be together."

In his realization that it was Fran, and Fran alone, who repulsed him, Gregory ceased not a state of anger, to which his love added recklessness. "Grace, hate me if you must, but you shall not misunderstand me!"

"Please don't ask me to understand you, Mr. Gregory, while you hide the only secret to your understanding. Don't come to me, with pretentious titles when what you call 'mysterious' business interests at Springfield drive me from your door, and keep Fran at my desk."

He interrupted in a low, passionate voice. "I am resolved that you should know everything. Fran—is my own daughter."

She gave no sign save a sudden compression of the mouth; nevertheless, her surprise was extreme. Her mind flashed along the wires of the present entanglement.

"He thought her merely stunned, and burst forth: 'I tell you, Fran is my child. Now you know why I'm compelled to do what she wants. That's the secret Bob brought from Springfield. That's the secret Abbott told you huns over my head the rafter after I'd betrayed him! All of my ungrateful friends have conspired to ruin me, to force you from me by this secret. But you know it now, and I've escaped its danger. You know it!'"

"And does your wife know?"

"Would I tell her, and not tell you? It's you I've tried to shield. I married Josephine Derry, and Fran is my child. You know Fran. Well, her mother was just like her—frivolous, caring only for things of the world—irreligious. And I was just a boy—a mere college youth. When I realized the awful mistake I'd made, I thought it best to go away and let her live her own life. Years after I put all that behind me, and came to Littleburg, I married Mrs. Gregory and I wanted to put all my past life away—clear away—and live a good open life. Then you came. Then I found out I'd never known what love meant. It means a life of love, love that has nothing to do with the physical man. It means just your soul and mine. . . . And it's too late!"

ing into his, "have you told me all the secret?"

"Yes—all."

"Then Mr. Clinton deceived me!"

"He agreed to hide everything. If I'd send you away."

"Oh, I see! So even he is one of Fran's allies. Never mind—I'd say that when you married the second time, your first wife was living, and had never been divorced?"

"But Grace—dear Grace! I thought it all right. I believed—"

"Then she is not your wife," she said in a low whisper.

"She believes—"

"She believes—" Her voice rose scornfully. "And so that is the fact Fran wanted hidden; you are not really bound to her."

"Not legally—but—"

"In what way, then?"

"Why, in no regular way—I mean— but don't you see, there could be no marriage to make it binding, without telling her—" with ecstasy, while Grace outcried, yielded to the love that had outgrown all other principles of conduct.

"They gained the street before the doorway which by courtesy passed under the name of 'the city square.' Grace's hand grew tense on Gregory's arm—"Look!"

Her whisper was lost in the wind, but Gregory, following her frightened glance, saw Robert Clinton showing his way through the crowd, forcing his progress bluntly, or jovially, according to the nature of obstruction. He did not see them and, by dodging, they escaped.

"The nearness of danger had pale'd Grace's cheeks. Gregory accepted his own trembling as natural, but Grace's evident fear acted upon his nebulous state of mind in a way to condense jumbled emotions and deceptive longings into something like real thought. If they were in the right, why did they feel such expansive relief when the crowd swept them from the sidewalk to bear them far away from Robert Clinton?"

The merry-go-round, its very music traveling in a circle, clothed its stonewallings and organ, walling against a drum-and-tombstone band, while these distinct strata of sound were cut across by an outcropping of graphophones and megaphones. Always out of sympathy with such displays, but now more than ever repelled by them, Grace and Gregory hurried away to find themselves penned in a court, surrounded on all sides by accident cries of "barbers," crackling reports from target-practice, fusillades at the "doll-habes," clanging jars from strength-testers and the like; while from this horrid field of misguided indignity, there was no outlet save the narrow entrance they had unwittingly used.

"Horrible!" exclaimed Grace, halting over the tread-ropes that entangled the ground. "We must get out of this!"

It was no easy task to turn about, so dense was the crowd.

Scarcely had they accomplished the maneuver when Grace exclaimed below her breath, "There he is!"

Sure enough, Robert Clinton stood at the narrowest point of their way.

"Do I want to see her again? But Grace, if she stay here until train-time, Bob will come out—and end us—I don't want to meet Bob."

"Then let us go. There are such crowds on the streets that we can easily lose ourselves."

"Bob will hunt for you, Grace. If he gets back with Abbott before our train leaves, Miss Sapphira said she was looking for him in a minute, and that was a good while ago."

"If you can't keep him from finding me," Grace said, "let him find. I do not consider that I am acting in the wrong. This is the beginning of our lives, his finished, with sudden joy. And if Bob sees me with you, Grace, what he knows, you can guess that something very unpleasant would."

CHAPTER XXI.

Flight.

To reach the station, they must either penetrate the heart of the town, or follow the dark streets of the outskirts. In the latter case, their association would be most conspicuous, but in the former reasonable safety might be expected.

After the first intense moment of cavitation, both began to fear a possible seizure. Grace especially dreaded discovery as she approached her conscience was not clear, and Gregory, in the midst of his own perturbation, was always rick; what in his eyes was always right, what in his eyes was always beautiful, and what in his eyes was always beautiful, and what in his eyes was always beautiful.

"I Don't Think He Has Seen Us."

He was clinging to an upright and when this Miss Sapphira, the head of the multitude, sought to scan every face.

"I don't think he has seen us," muttered Hamilton Gregory, instinctively lowering his head.

"We can't get out now," Grace lamented. "No, he hasn't seen us yet. But that's the only piece of—of escape—and he keeps looking so cautiously—He must have gone to the store. He knows I'm away. He may have gone to the house."

It was because every side-view of the cognival company had insisted on occupying space around the court-house, and because this space was meager, that the country folk and esquirely, and the townsmen showed in the street. In reality, however, they were not in the street, and if they were, they would have been so close to the court-house that they would have been seen.

WASHINGTON.

The senate passed without reference to committee, the house appropriation of $100,000 to get Americans out of Mexico.

Senators Thornton and Donahue have introduced bills to appropriate $25,000,000 for good roads in co-operation with states.

The House adopted an amendment introduced by Representative Bulkeley of Ohio to permit members banks unlimited redemptive privileges with the proposed federal reserve banks.

The production of gold in the United States during 1912 amounted to $93,461,500, a decrease of $3,438,500, as compared with the previous years, and the lowest American production since 1907.

Democratic members of the tariff committee now engaged in adjusting the schedules of the tariff bill, decided not to make public any further agreements until the conference work is completed.

Republican Leader, Mann, dropped a bomb among democratic leaders when he introduced a resolution calling on Speaker Clark to appoint a committee of seven to investigate the soliciting of campaign funds among members of the house.

Joseph W. Folk's candidacy for solicitor of the State department has advanced to a point where congressional friends of the appointment reported favorable to the senate in the "June." Senator Jones urged that as the senate is not considering any legislation at present there was no reason why the amendment should not be taken up.

Plans for an adjournment of the house for a month or longer after the currency and tariff bills are disposed of were under consideration by house and senate leaders. It is the senate that will be engaged on the currency bill for many weeks, while the house would have nothing of importance before it.

Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington, in the senate demanded action at once on the proposed constitutional amendment to give women the right to vote. The amendment was reported favorably to the senate in the "June." Senator Jones urged that as the senate is not considering any legislation at present there was no reason why the amendment should not be taken up.

DOMESTIC.

The consignment of 100 tons of Argentine beef, which arrived in New York Monday, the first big shipment ever brought to the United States, all has been disposed of. Part of it was sold to dealers in this city and found its way into the retail trade.

Senator Brady of Idaho, president of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress, announced at Pocatello, Idaho, that the twenty-fourth annual session of the congress which was to have been held at Wichita, Kan., October 21, has been postponed until next year.

Judge Medler in the district court of Estancia, N. C., accepted Justino Moya's plea of guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced him to the state penitentiary for not less than 150 years nor more than 100 years. Moya killed a woman with whom he had been intimate, crushing his victim's head with an axe.

Over ten thousand men have joined in the strike movement started by the transport workers here, and the buildings and other trades are greatly affected. It is estimated by the leaders that unless peace between the men and the employers is soon reached some more men will be thrown out of work as their labor depends on that of the men who have struck already.

What is believed to have been the maximum was reached at Silver Lake, Cal., on Sept. 17, when the mercury climbed at the 127 mark. Considerable crop damage was reported.

The United States last year produced 21,523,000 barrels of salt. Oakland, Cal., street railway men are now paid a maximum of 60 cents an hour after ten years of service.

Seventy-five persons will go on the round-the-world tour to be made next winter by the New York Nationals and the Chicago Americans. President Conkney of the Chicago club announced that there will be fifty in his party which the steamer sails from Vancouver, November 19, and the Gotham delegation will number twenty-five.

Thirteen-year-old George Bonlar, who was holding a guy rope to a balloon which it was being inflated preparatory to an ascension at a fair at Woodstock, Conn., was suddenly carried 500 feet in the air and then dropped to instant death in front of the grandstand, where 5,000 people were assembled.

According to Jack Wilson in the Denver Post, it is almost a certainty that the Denver Base Ball club will not be headed or owned next year by Jimmie McGill; and that Jack Hoedricks, manager of the Bears, will not be with the club. It is also stated by McGill that Jimmie McGill has just about closed negotiations to purchase the Indianapolis club of the American association in consideration of $150,000.

J. D. McRae of Omaha, Neb., has filed suit in the United States district court against Charles R. Webster, now of Shreveport, La., but at one time a free horse man in Hot Springs, Ark., asking payment of $350 due on a note made September 24, 1896, with interest from that date at 10 per cent. The interest compounded would amount to double the face of the note, which McRae asserts under the Nebraska law is not outlawed. The note was made in Nebraska.

Two years in the federal penitentiary on McNeil Island, Washington, and a fine of $2,000, is the price exacted by the former state architect, a California must pay for his flight to Reno with Marsha Warrington, a Sacramento sorority girl. Eighteen months in the state prison and a fine of $1,000 was the penalty imposed on his friend and companion, Drew Caminetti, son of Anthony Caminetti, United States commissioner general of immigration, for a like offense.

Officers of the American meat packers' association declared that the organization at its annual convention to be held next week will go on record against the unnecessary slaughter of better calves as a step in a campaign of education to prevent a further shortage in the country's meat supply. Another move contemplated is the adoption of resolutions urging farmers to raise hogs for the market on a large scale, as the present high prices of pork should make the business exceptionally profitable. The packers, it is said, realize that something must be done to increase the meat supply. Legislation may be sought to prevent the needless slaughter of live stock, which is curtailing the production of the future supply.

FOREIGN.

The United States cruiser, Des Moines, ordered to Dominican waters by Washington to protect American interests, has arrived at Puerto Plata, where the Dominican gunboats were blockading the port.

A list of rebel and bandit chiefs compiled from reliable sources, shows a total of forty-three at the head of bands, ranging from thirty to 600 men each. Disarmed from ranchowners, refugees, federal officers, railroad men and residents of the towns show an aggregate of 15,500 men under arms against the Government.

England is being threatened with a great railway strike and Liverpool, as trouble began with the refusal of the Liverpool dockers to handle freight from Dublin, where the transport workers are on strike. Men to the number of 2,500 employed in the freight yards of the various railways went out and were joined later by 4,000 at Birmingham.

The Bulgarian peace delegates finally surrendered to Turkish pressure and allowed the towns of Kif Kilitash to remain in Ottoman hands. The Turks also succeeded in having the future location of the armistice line between Bulgaria and Turkey fixed. The line was fixed at the Disko line limit to Turkish territory should be between Inada and Hagios Stefano (northeast of Adrianople). Instead of an originally proposed at Kifita.

SULZER ATTORNEYS LOSE ONCE MORE

MOTION TO DISMISS IS LOST BY VOTE OF 55 TO 1—SPEEDY TRIAL ASSURED.

LAST STAND IS NOW MADE

Attempt to Quash Indictment Being Made—Story of How the Last Vote Was Taken.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Governor William Sulzer must go to trial. This was decided by the high court of impeachment when by a vote of 61 to 1 its members overruled the motion of the governor's counsel to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that he was unconstitutionally impeached by the assembly because that body was in extra session when the impeachment was brought.

But One May Cast. Senator Gottfried H. Wendt of Buffalo, Democrat, an ardent supporter of the governor, cast the solitary nay, while seven members of the court were absent.

The governor's defeat was the second that has marked the battle waged by his attorneys in unending and far as possible the impeachment proceedings. Last week the court thwarted their attempt to prevent four senators from sitting as members. Their remaining ammunition consists of arguments to prove that certain of the charges charged against the governor are not impeachable. These arguments are now being heard.

Secret Session Voted.

The above mentioned vote was taken in secret session after an afternoon devoted to speeches by the opposing attorneys. When the time came for the court to render its decision, Presiding Judge Cullen announced that he did not feel inclined to use the power granted him under the rules to be the first to express an opinion.

"My brethren," he said, "you will readily appreciate that the point which has been discussed goes to the very foundation of this proceeding. If decided in one way the proceeding must necessarily stop. You have the power to stop the court by private consultation under the rules."

This was done on motion of Judge Cullen, but the vote was later announced in a brief public session and the record of the proceedings was immediately made public. It showed a tentative call on the motion was immediately taken and that the presiding judge delivered a long opinion on the points at issue when his name was called, thirteen on the list.

Opinion of Judge Cullen.

Judge Cullen's opinion, in substance, was that the provision of the constitution which limited the acts of the legislature in extra session to such subjects as were recommended to it by the governor should be given a reasonable construction. It upheld the provision of the constitution that the provision referred to the legislature as a whole and not to the assembly as an independent body.

"So construed," said Judge Cullen, "these subjects all relate to what the legislature as a body can do, and not to the power vested in one branch of the legislature."

MARSHALLS ARE DISGUSTED

Through With House-hunting and Ready to Live in Hotel, They Say.

Washington, Sept. 24.—Vice President and Mrs. Marshall are through with house-hunting. The vice president, while the Hooper steamship is in office—will be a hotel.

"What's the use of house-hunting if your life," said the vice president, "is to be a hotel? We will live in a hotel the rest of the time we are here. You will do me a favor if you will tell that to all the real estate dealers and make them quit chasing me."

North Dakota Church Conference. Fargo, N. D., Sept. 23.—Delegates from every congregational church in North Dakota were here for the annual conference. The vice president of the conference, Rev. J. H. Emery of the Fargo City congregation, welcomed the visitors to the city and responses were made by M. B. Cassell, the moderator of the conference.

Hermon W. Craven was recently appointed by President Wilson as a member of the civil service commission. He is a Republican and his home is in Seattle.

DANGERS OF A MEAT FAMINE

PACKERS DECLARE FARMERS CAN AVERT CALAMITY.

Suggested That Each Producer Raise at Least Two Beef Steers a Year to Offset Scarcity.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—The responsibility for averting a future meat famine was put up to small farmers by speakers at the eighth annual convention of the American Meat Packers' association. All the speakers agreed that if the decrease in meat production of the last 10 years is not stopped the question of the meat supply for the United States will be most serious.

Among the remedies suggested by the speakers were: Every small farmer should raise at least two beef steers a year to offset the decreased production of the great ranches of the West.

Substitution of corn for cotton in the southern states and the consequent development of the cattle and hog production.

The report of the executive sounded the first note of the danger of a famine.

The American meat packing house situation and that of consumers of meat is a condition "more precarious than at any other time in our history," the report stated.

"The farmers are not furnishing nearly a sufficient number of animals to keep the packing houses in operation on anything like full time and this results in heavy losses, owing to lack of volume of business, and there seems to be no prospect of relief. Despite the higher prices for livestock of all kinds, statistics show that the farmers not only are not increasing their production of meat food animals, but that such production is decreasing at an appalling rate."

TRAIN DYNAMITED; 30 DEAD

People Reported to Have Committed Serious Outrage in Mexico.

Mexico City, Sept. 24.—A northbound train on the Mexican National railway has been dynamited by the rebels near Vangueria in the north part of the state of San Luis Potosi. From mesager reports, received here it is believed that 30 were killed.

The locomotive passed safely over the dynamite charge, but the baggage car and two coaches were destroyed. The passengers killed were in the second class.

Washington, Sept. 24.—Captain Joseph H. Starnes, commanding the battleship Ohio, has been designated by Secretary Daniels as chief of the naval bureau of production with office base of manufacturing. Starnes was succeeded by Rear Admiral Charles W. Young, who has been assigned to the command of the cruiser Albatross.

NEW TARIFF TO BE FINISHED THIS WEEK

CONFERENCE REPORT EXPECTED TO REACH THE HOUSE BY THURSDAY.

WILSON HAS PEN SHARPENED

President is Waiting to Sign Measure and Enact It Into Law For Nation.

Washington, Sept. 23.—Disputed points between the senate and house in the tariff bill have narrowed down to such chief features as the income tax, the tax on cotton futures and the administrative provisions. Democratic managers expect to send the conference report to the house by Thursday.

To Sign This Week.

President Wilson told callers that his conference with leaders led him to believe all differences would be smoothed out and he would sign the bill this week.

"I've got my pen sharpened," said the president. Chairman Simmons of the senate finance committee and Senator Hoke Smith assure President Wilson that they expect the bill to be ready for his signature before the end of the week.

The last moments of the passage of a tariff measure, however, always offer opportunity for rejection of a conference report and further deliberations on points upon which either house may insist.

Southerners Agree.

Democratic leaders from the south are said to be agreed on the cotton futures tax committee compromise proposed by Representative Lever and endorsed by Postmaster General Burleson and Senator Hoke Smith. Instead of the high Clarke tax, it proposes a smaller tax on cotton for which the government has fixed standards. The cotton exchange men, however, are protesting against it.

Chairman Simmons said he had not discussed the cotton futures tax with the president, but indicated the senate managers would not yield to the house on their amendment.

MURDER MYSTERY CLEARED

Man Arrested in Philadelphia Admits Killing Girl in Rochester, N. Y. Cemetery.

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—The identity of the perpetrator of the brutal murder of Anna Catharine Schuchmacher in Holy Sepulchre cemetery in Rochester, New York, on Aug. 7, 1909, was established here, it is believed. Captain of the Philadelphia detective bureau, Jacob Wolfsohn, arrested for larceny, confessed to having committed the deed.

After Wolfsohn's arrest guards noticed that he constantly peered his cell and seemed to have something on his mind. Finally, according to the detectives, the prisoner asked for pencil and paper and wrote a note to the district attorney containing the simple statement that he had killed a girl in a cemetery at Rochester and that her name was Schuchmacher. Under questioning by Captain Cameron and two other detectives he collapsed.

Industry Denied. "Your husband says he has to sit at a desk all day." "Yes," replied the energetic woman, "but most of the time he keeps his feet on the desk."

Smoothing. "I asked her if her husband smoked," said the woman with an inquiring mind. "And what do you think? She said she didn't know." "I don't see what difference it makes to you." "Oh, I don't care whether he smokes. I wanted to know if he kisses her."—Washington Star.

Frudish Priest. Prudery knows no frontiers. The historic and valuable frescoes in the church of Renoouville, Calvedo, have just been ruined by the misplaced zeal of a parish priest. The frescoes represented by the Day of Judgment and scenes from an old French parable, and the priest's action is due to the fact that the painter clothed his figures after the fashion of our first parents.—London Globe.

Comfort for Night Workers. In one of the New York hotels a floor is arranged for the use of those who work at night and sleep during the day. The "Sleepy Sixteenth," as the floor is nicknamed, is run on an inverted time table, with a separate staff, and its restaurant, lift and telephone service. No one sleeping on this floor is called, except under special orders, until late in the day. Breakfast is served in the afternoon and the other meals are put back in the same way. All the routine work of cleaning and bedmaking is done after daylight.

HAPPY OLD AGE Most Likely to Follow Proper Eating

As old age advances we require less food to replace waste, and food that will not overtax the digestive organs, while supplying true nourishment. Such an ideal food is found in Grape-Nuts, made of whole wheat and barley by long baking and action of distaste in the barley which changes the starch into a most digestible sugar. The phosphates also, placed up under the outer-coat of the wheat, are included in Grape-Nuts, but are lacking in whole flour because the outer coat of the wheat darkens the flour and is left out by the miller. These natural phosphates are necessary to the well-balanced building of muscle, brain and nerve cells. "I have written," writes an Iowa man, "for 8 years and feel as good and as strong as ever in my ten years."

"Among my customers I meet a man every day who is well along in years and attributes his good health to Grape-Nuts and Postum which he has used for the last 5 years. He mixes Grape-Nuts with Postum and says they go fine together."

"For many years before I began to eat Grape-Nuts, I could not say that I enjoyed life or knew what it was to be able to say I suffer. I suffered greatly with constipation, but now my habits are as regular as ever in my life."

"Whenever I make extra effort to depend on Grape-Nuts-food-and it just fits the bill. I can think and write a great deal better."

"Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read 'The Road to Wellville,' is plain. Ever read the story letter? A new one appears from time to time, they are beautiful, free, and full of happy messages."

Corn Contest Nears End.

Fargo.—The North Dakota Better Farming association is preparing to close the year end corn contest that has engaged the attention of so many farmers in this state. Reports are being received as to average yields and condition of maturity of corn entered in the contest. These reports indicate that only 20 per cent of the fields entered in the contest are under the best of care. An inquiry has been made as to the number of boys that have selected seed corn this year. The reports now in show that slightly under 23 per cent have saved corn. The remaining 77 per cent of the crop is being raised from forty bushels of mature corn to 100 or 110 bushels to the acre. The yields will be judged the latter part of this month and October 1, and prizes aggregating $700 in gold, will be distributed among the winners.

Withdraw From Labor Union.

Fargo.—On the ground that they are artists and not laborers, the Fargo musicians' union will withdraw from the local labor assembly, with which it has been affiliated for a long time. It will continue as a local union but independently. CORN ATTRACTS SETTLERS

Farmers in Dry States Looking for Homes in Red River Valley.

Grand Forks.—More new settlers will be attracted to northwestern Minnesota and North Dakota this year as a result of the splendid showing made in raising corn than from any other single source. Farmers here and men interested in bringing in new residents to this district expect to see a new record of immigrants established this season and next spring.

Disappointed by their season's work without reward, farmers of the central states are coming to the northwest. They are seeing fine fields of grain, and the corn is attracting their attention particularly. Cornfields are well matured in practically all sections of the state. The farmers here gathered their seed for next year in greater quantity than ever before, and the prospects are that next year will see a greatly increased corn acreage.

In the St. Thomas Indian reservation, district about twenty Indiana farmers will make their permanent homes. Most of them have bought land there, and they will add to the business of a community that has heretofore been supported by the Indians of the area. There have been in the hands of outside owners who did not farm their own land.

Land values are at a high point as a result of the demand, and farmers are willing to pay for land. The new farmers are not driving out the old ones, but are in most instances purchasing land that is owned by non-residents.

North Dakota and Montana are fully equipped to fight hog cholera, in the event the disease should spread in these states," was the statement of Dr. L. Van Lee, head of the livestock department of the North Dakota agricultural college, who told how to fight the disease. The hog cholera is as prevalent in the state to stem any spread of the disease and our farmers and agricultural field men have profited by the experience in Minnesota.

Such J. Hughes of Minneapolis talked on "The Hog Cholera in Dakota." Thomas Conner, secretary of the North Dakota Better Farming Association, and Dean Shepard of the North Dakota agricultural college were the other speakers.

First Norwegian Dies Rich.

Sherbrook.—Fingal Enger, Steele county's first Norwegian farmer, who died recently, left an estate valued at $500,000, according to appraisements made by the administrators. The estate is made up largely of land.

In addition to the valuation determined by the administrators there is more money than $100,000 which will bring the total to about $700,000. Enger located in Steele county in 1878. Being then without means, he traveled into the country by foot, walking more than 100 miles to reach the point he selected as his home.

Shinn Has $10,000 Prize.

Rhame.—Fire did about $10,000 damage here by burning the Majestic restaurant, the Baker hotel and the Rhame house residence. The fire was caused by a gas leak in the kitchen of the restaurant and spread to the other structures. Business here has promised support for a new hotel.

THE BEST TREATMENT FOR ITCHING SCALPS, DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR.

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, the following special treatment is most effective, agreeable and economical. On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin at the side and make a parting, gently rubbing Cuticura Ointment into the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Annot additional partings about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the Cuticura Ointment on the scalp rather than on the hair. It is well to place a light covering over the hair to protect the pillow from possible stain. The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Shampoo alone may be used as often as agreeable, but once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment for women's hair.
