WELLESLEY FIRE ROUTS 250 GIRLS

STUDENTS ESCAPE FROM DUNGING BUILDING BUT LOSE THEIR CLOTHING.

LOSS IS ABOUT $7,500,000

Harriet Work of Two Young Women Prevents Horrible Death Tragedy - Ring Gown and Ruise 320 Sleepers by Quik Work Which Averts Panic.

Wellesley, Mass., March 12. - Two hundred and fifty Wellesley students and 100 other persons, including members of the faculty and servants, fled for their lives early today when fire destroyed the main building, the largest and most pretentious of the buildings in the college group. No one was injured. The loss is estimated at $7,500,000.

Girls Take Home. The college sessions temporarily have been suspended and special trains were made up to take the girls to their homes. Practically all of those who had rooms in the building lost their personal possessions and clothing.

The superb behavior of the young women probably prevented heavy loss of life or injury in any way except through smoke-stained hair and down the stairways and fire escapes to safety.

350 in Building. The building was divided into divisions, each with its own office and quarters for servants. Three hundred and fifty persons slept there last night—250 students, 50 members of the faculty and 50 students employed by the faculty and students.

Girls Are Heroines. Miss Charlotte Donnell of Wiscasset, Me., and Miss Virginia Moffat of Orange, N. J., both seniors, were the heroines of the fire. Miss Donnell rang the fire alarm while Miss Moffat hurried along the halls, pounding on every door. She did not yell "fire," but commanded, "Put on your wraps quickly."

TRUSTS SUBSTITUTES BILL CONSOLIDATED

PRESIDENT WILSON INDICATES BELIEF THIS WOULD EXPEDITE LEGISLATION.

APPROVES SUBSTANCE OF ALL

Executive Does Over Measures in Practically Final Form and Makes Such Suggestions as He Thinks Proper For Their Perfection.

Washington, March 12. - President Wilson, in a conference with the house judiciary committee on the trust bill (the stamp of administration approval on the substance of the four bills to amend the anti-trust laws which the committee submitted in a practically final form.

Another Conference Seen. There will be another conference at the White House within a week and members of the committee expect that all four bills to strengthen the trust laws, holding companies, trade relations and donations of restraint of trade, will be reported to the house within forty days.

President Wilson indicated his belief that it would be better to consolidate all the bills into one to expedite legislation, but the committee will be effected to practically certain.

Personal Guilt Clause. The president made a number of suggestions to the subcommittee. He insisted that personal guilt of individual bills in control of corporations should be introduced in every bill in order to break up trusts that have grown up under the present anti-trust laws.

Discriminations Made. Holding companies that are entirely for investment and which do not discriminate in the sale of stock, would permit companies like the big insurance concerns to hold the stock of concerns which have been compelled to combine a number of persons into one company, as in the case of the Standard Oil company and the American Tobacco company and the holding companies of operating railroads to combine a number of persons into one company, but which combination is necessary to make a unit.

Compensation Not Permitted. It includes cotton mills if made up of combined competitors: it would prohibit holding corporations of moving picture concerns which sought exemption from the act.

Most of the four bills as now framed provide for exemption of labor unions from anti-trust prosecution. Senator Hoar of New Jersey is expected to present an amendment for that purpose if the bill, as it is finally read the senate, have such exemption. The trade relations bill prohibits a merchant from handling a competitor's goods. It prohibits final price fixing in the contract, though it permits a price agreement, with the proviso that the price at which goods should be sold, is the price as from manufacturer to jobber.

The interstate directors bill includes a provision to prohibit directors in a position to sell to competitors in which they are directors. The definition bill embodies such definitions as seem not to have been covered by decisions of the courts.

Crisis in Affairs of Read. Washington, March 12. - After weeks of negotiations, the bill of the affairs of the New Haven railroad system, which was passed by the senate on March 10, has been reported to the house by the committee on the subject of the Read bill. The bill was passed by the senate on March 10, and the house is expected to pass it within a few days.

Swedish Explorer Retired. Stockholm, March 12. - Sven Nordenskiöld, one of the famous Arctic explorers who died in 1901, reports that his companion in an expedition in Alaska, America, Johanson, has been killed.

WILLIAM G. SHARP

William G. Sharp, who has served in the last three congresses, as representative from the Fourteenth District, is said to be the president's choice for ambassador to Russia.

A split verdict is being conducted by the coroner, the city and railroad officials.

The death toll may reach three. R. P. Damron, Minneapolis, is in a serious condition at Ansbury hospital. William Menis of St. Paul is at St. Joseph's hospital with a fractured skull.

All the other Minneapolis injured are in no danger and of the score of others at St. Paul hospitals, many have gone to their homes. The body of Miss Julia Hilberg, the Minneapolis girl killed, was moved from St. Paul to her home in Mendota.

General Superintendent F. B. Pechin and Division Superintendent A. Welch, the train crew and the section crew in charge of the track where the wreck occurred, will be called. Only three or four passengers will be heard.

Meanwhile, Superintendent Pechin announces an investigation of his own. He says the wreck was due to a defective switch and he will endeavor to get out his version. He makes the statement: "The wreck was caused by a coter pie at the bottom of the switchwork working loose. This allowed the switch to open. The four cars passed safely, but the next two were shunted to the side track and derailed. We will endeavor to get out our version of what was responsible for the defective switch."

St. Paul police are investigating the disappearance of a diamond ring from Miss Hilberg's hand. The ring was on her hand when the body reached the St. Paul Union station. When it arrived at the home of her mother in Mendota, the body was carried by the city ambulance.

ERUPTIONS FOLLOW QUAKES

Villagers Terror Stricken by Terrible Tremors and Shooting Flames Which Bring Ruin and Destruction to Island of Hondu.

Tokio, March 12. - Sixty bodies have been found and the total of 300 persons is in doubt as the result of an earthquake in the prefecture of Akita, island of Hondu. Communication has been interrupted by seismic disturbances and full details of the disaster are lacking.

Where Deaths Occurred. In the city of Akita many buildings were destroyed or damaged and several families were killed. There were many casualties in the village of Kowakubi, which is now a mass of ruins.

The village of Kitamuro was burned. Three hundred workmen were in the copper mines at Taumodaki, which collapsed following the earth tremors, and their fate is unknown. In the basin of the Onono river, where 350 houses were dashed into splinters, sixty bodies have already been recovered from the debris.

Volcano Adds Terrors. Simultaneous with the earthquake came the eruption of the burning of flames from the volcano Asama-Yama, ninety miles northwest of Tokio, which terrified the inhabitants of the district.

Assama-Yama is the largest active volcano in Japan. A majority of its active periods have been productive of showers of ash or soot. Its last great eruption was in 1903, when several villages in the mountain range were obliterated by huge streams of lava. The crater is about three-quarters of a mile in circumference.

Shook Recorded in U. S. Most extraordinary and severe earthquake tremors of years were recorded on the telegraph at St. Ignace university near Montreal, beginning at 1:55 and ending at 3:15 a. m. One continuous tremor lasted two and one-half minutes.

Eats Freely But Has No Dyspepsia

A Little Peppin in a Mild Laxative Promptly Corrects a Bad Indigestion.

Fortunate is the one who can eat anything without suffering the torments of dyspepsia, but as few are so fortunate, care should be taken in the matter of diet. Eating slowly, masticating the food thoroughly and taking a short walk after the heavy meal of the day will do much towards assisting digestion. Any grow-up person ought to know the peculiar foods that do not agree, and these should be avoided.

When these common-sense aids fail, the next thing to do is to take a mild digestive tonic with laxative properties, and there is none better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains the greatest of all acids, it digests, it soothes, it has other ingredients that set mildly on the bowels which together form a combination for the relief of dyspepsia or indigestion that is unsurpassed.

Its action is to tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels, so that they can again do their work naturally without outside aid, and when that happy moment comes all medicine can be dispensed with. It is the best remedy obtainable for any disorder of the stomach, liver and bowels, for dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, headache, dizziness, bitter eructing, gas on the stomach, etc. Thousands of users will testify to this, among them Mr. J. W. Goucher, Slides, Idaho, who for several years had it all.

J. W. GOUCHER.

The worst symptoms of chronic dyspepsia. Since taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin these have all gone, and although Mr. Goucher says he is 64, he does not look more than 40. Syrup Pepsin is sure to its benefit, and a vast improvement over chewing or swallowing tablets and pills, at taking cathartics, salts, etc., all of which are harsh and nauseous and at best do but temporary good. You can obtain Syrup Pepsin at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar a bottle. Remittances are always guaranteed or money will be refunded. Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 232 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

GREATEST PRODUCT IN THE WORLD

DRILLING BY COMPRESSED AIR

AFFKAT nearly nine years of steady tunnelling, New York's great Catskill aqueduct has just been completed. It has cost the city of New York $12,000,000, the labor of 75,000 men, and the labor of over 8,000. It ranks with the Panama canal as one of the great engineering feats of the world. It will increase the existing water supply of New York city by 600,000,000 gallons a day, when the needs of an expanding population render necessary. Using the four drainage areas in the new system it is estimated that Greater New York's supply need never be under 110,000,000 gallons a day, even in the driest kind of weather, or about 260,000,000 more than is needed at present.

Water Works of the Past. Never in the history of the world has any water supply approached in magnitude this Catskill undertaking. When the reader remembers all the renowned water works of ancient and modern times: when he calls to mind the damming of the mighty Euphrates by the great old Assyrian king, when he views the immense stone ruins of the Roman aqueduct of the second century—to this day as great a wonder as the Pyramids, when he reads the description of those marvelous dams on the Nile at Assuan and Assut, whereby all of Egypt is irrigated and made fertile when he remembers with amazement that wonderful story of how Holland recovered thousands of acres from the Zuyder Zee; and when he remembers the grand and Pathfinders dams of the Catskill, he will be amazed that the wonderful story of how Holland recovered thousands of acres from the Zuyder Zee; and when he remembers the grand and Pathfinders dams of the Catskill, he will be amazed that the wonderful story of how Holland recovered thousands of acres from the Zuyder Zee;

South Portal of Peak Grate Tunnel has a trillion gallons of fresh water; when, with all this assemblage of huge water works in his mind, he turns to the present feat of New York engineering and finds that in every particular the Catskill supply completely overshadows those other wonders of the world, then he begins to see a definite idea of the prodigious magnificence of this twentieth century enterprise.

The Champlain Aqueduct reservoir, the greatest of all ages or countries of the earth, occupies the whole valley of the Esopus, in the Catskill, and sectional section to seal new homes.

The Assyrian king's Mesopotamian reservoir, if it could have been dropped into the vast lake that lies behind the Ashokan dam, would not have raised its level more than a summer shower. The Roman aqueducts are but toy pipes, compared with the Catskill aqueduct. Eight times as much money has been spent by New York city for her new supply system as was spent in erecting the Assuan dam on the Nile. The Zuyder Zee works cost $100,000,000 less than the Catskill. The Kalkreuth project put into his project half a dozen such dams as the Mesopotamian and the Pathfinders. The Catskill project will supply New York city with water for 100 years.

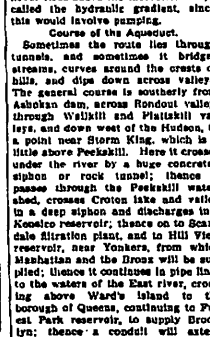

The Ashokan reservoir, from which the water will flow 114 1/2-mile trip to the city, is 11.8 miles square. The Catskill watersheds have an area of 900 square miles. They include the valleys of the Esopus, Roelofs, Schoharie and Catskill creeks. It is estimated that, when everything is in working order, these sources will yield an average supply of 660,000,000 gallons daily.

In the peaceful valley of the Esopus, where 18 villages once nestled along the stream, is a natural hollow that geologists have an island in the water-filled times, before some mighty convulsion of nature opened the rift through which now flows the majestic Hudson. This natural basin is now the bed of the great Ashokan reservoir. The principal wall of the dam is nearly two miles in length, and over 100 feet in height. Its breadth at the base is 1,200 feet, but tapers to a width of 60 feet at the top.

The huge aqueduct is an underground channel of concrete, ranging in diameter from 11 to 17 feet, built to last forever and to carry the water in continuous descent from the high level of 400 feet at Ashokan to a depth of 310 feet at the city, where it reaches a main storage reservoir, for maintaining a very large store of water near New York, and delivering it to the city at a rate of about five miles an hour. The aqueduct follows the contour of the land as much as practicable, curving up and down as an inclined plane, and up and down again on the siphon principle, but never rises above the theoretical slope called the hydraulic gradient, since this would involve pumping.

Course of the Aqueduct. Sometimes the route lies through tunnels, and sometimes over bridges, across the crests of hills, and dips down across valleys. The general course is southerly from Ashokan dam across Roseton valley, through Hill and Flatkill valleys, and down west of the Hudson, to a point near Storm King, which is a little above Peekskill. There it crosses the Hudson on a huge concrete siphon or rock tunnel; thence it passes through the Peekskill watershed, crosses Croton lake and falls into a deep siphon and discharges into Kosciuszko reservoir; thence on to Scarsdale filtration plant, and to Hill View reservoir, near Croton, from which it flows through the Bronx, where it is supplied; thence it continues in pipe lines to the waters of the East river, crossing above Ward's Island to the borough of Queens, continuing under Park Park reservoir, to supply Brooklyn; thence a conduit will extend through South Brooklyn and beneath the bottom of the Narrows over to Staten Island, where a distributing reservoir will supply Richmond borough. The total length of the works from the island up to the reservoir is 150 miles.

The most unique feature of this aqueduct is the tunnel through the mountains near the Hudson at Storm King. This is a feat of tunneling that puts to blush any tunneling anywhere in the world. The subways go down 93 feet below the water, but the Storm King siphon sinks 416 feet below the surface of the water and 1,200 feet below the aqueduct gradient, crosses under the river and then starts up to New York again, gradually rising to a point within several hundred feet of the earth's surface. If it were built on the self-pressure principle, used in the East river tunnel, the workers would be driven from the pressure as soon as the water had gone 100 feet under the work. For this reason the engineers decided to take it up above the water. For this reason the engineers decided to take it up above the water. For this reason the engineers decided to take it up above the water.

they may finish with only an ordinary collar, or they may lengthen until they verge into a soft giraffe at the neckline.

Taffeta, as in dresses and coats, is much in evidence in the latest neckwear. It is seen in pompadour weaves with their lovely colorings, as well as in the shaded weaves and solid colors. Taffeta ruffles and Medici collars of the same silk with in a measure take the place of the cutie feather and matinee neckpieces which have been in favor so long, and which are worn in the early autumn and in the first weeks of spring when neckpieces of fur would be too clumsy and warm. felt neckpieces introduced this season consisted of a high standing Medici collar of pompadour with either by trills of cream-finished tulle. The taffeta had a black ground stream over with large red roses and green leaves in soft tones. The wide neck rills were placed inside next the neck and fell over the high standing collar of taffeta, extending in front effect down each side of a V front.

There is quite a rage for waistcoats this spring. They are fashioned from all sorts of material, in-

REALLY A FORM OF SANDAL

Low Top Shoes Highly Desirable As Comfortable Worn With Stockings of a Different Shade.

Low top shoes sound alluring, don't they? They are really high shoes, out in every way like ordinary dress shoes—but the vamp is of colored satin, the top of the lace, fitting is snugly done on a V bottom.

One pair, particularly pretty, showed top and heel of cloth of gold, with top of the vamp in a beautiful color of satin and lace colored to match the top. A combination that shows up well when stockings of a different shade are worn beneath. Our pair, little more extreme than the others, has merely the top part of satin—the heel of the stocking being allowed to show through the meshes of the lace. Here indeed we come back to the sandal, since nothing could exceed this lace above for transparency.

Blossoms and Fichus. Warm blossoms are made of poplin, satin or figured, and satins are in finer fabrics. They are made with a slight admixture of silk in them, closely thrown up to the surface in the weaves. Many are high in the neck, but the majority are collarless and open at the throat. There are, however, deep, all-around collars which are done on very close days and provide some modicum of warmth. Silk blossoms are worn when used with light weight materials, such as muslin or tulle, and these are trimmed with silk lace or embroidery, and the trimmings also, with quantities of silk in the same color with the silk.

SUGAR BEETS THRIVE ON ANY GOOD SOIL

Many persons are unsuccessful with sugar beets because they do not give them enough fresh air. The atmosphere of the ordinary living room is both too dry and too warm for the average plant, and the room is usually kept so tightly closed during the cold months that the air is seldom pure.

Plants of all sorts, whether they are raised indoors or outdoors, must have an abundance of fresh air. Two or three times a day open some of the windows and allow new air to enter the room. Let the cold air in through a fan or more every day when the outside temperature is not very low. On all mild days in winter throw open all of the doors and windows. The fresh air will make the difference it will make in the vigor, color and growth of the plants when they do have all the good air they need.

Keep a box of rich earth in the house for repotting plants during the winter. Fresh earth added is always beneficial to plant life. When repotting, beat the earth to kill the worms and the most active house plants give them plant food. Ammoniated bone meal is a good fertilizer for house plants. Beware of the fancy fertilizers. Let the plants have many decayed roots. All plants with shiny surfaces can be washed with soap and water containing a little olive oil.

Thinning Sugar Beets, Which Owing to the Closeness of the Young Plants, Must Be Done by Hand.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

It is generally conceded that the best soil for the production of sugar beets are the sandy loams and the clay loams. However, any good soil, if properly handled, will produce satisfactory results. The most important conditions are favorable, states Farm Bureau Bulletin #11 of the Department of Agriculture. In general, more depends upon the physical condition of the soil than upon its strict classification.

Let the cold air in through a fan or more every day when the outside temperature is not very low. On all mild days in winter throw open all of the doors and windows. The fresh air will make the difference it will make in the vigor, color and growth of the plants when they do have all the good air they need.

Plants of all sorts, whether they are raised indoors or outdoors, must have an abundance of fresh air. Two or three times a day open some of the windows and allow new air to enter the room. Let the cold air in through a fan or more every day when the outside temperature is not very low. On all mild days in winter throw open all of the doors and windows. The fresh air will make the difference it will make in the vigor, color and growth of the plants when they do have all the good air they need.

THE GIRL from PROSPERITY

By GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

(Copyright by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

When James E. Carroll, his attire fully draped up to his pink tie, swaggered into the Hotel Helweg barbershop, the boss barber leaning over at the table of the famous Williams blond in spite of his present ill humor.

"Pops the village cut-up," he observed. The Manicure Girl surveyed the newspaper with a keen eye.

"No, Billy," she replied, "it's the village sport."

"Whatever he is," insisted Billy, "he's a lick and looking for a recent shave."

Again the girl surveyed the newspaper critically.

"No," she once more insisted, "it'll bet you the size of the tip that he tips you."

"The same which would be a fine one for me to make, I think," observed Billy, and added a forcible word or so under his breath as he started forward.

"I'll take a round trip," he affably observed as Billy slipped the sleeves of the shaving apron over his arms.

"That's one of the good things you can order," she told him. "If I give those nails the full course as soon you've got to get a new set."

"Can't you just fuss around with them a little bit, then?" he inquired.

"I'm so nervous I could go to jail for company," she replied.

"That's what the matter? Haven't you had your hair done lately?" he asked, as what she meant to say.

"No," she complained, "the town's in a lull. There's no one out for a haircut here."

"That isn't what ails you. There's a girl back in Prosperity."

"There's half a dozen of them," he grunted, and then he looked at her carefully.

"There's just one girl back in Prosperity," she said, "and you're talking about a whole lot of them."

"You needn't worry, Billy," she replied. "No one's going to get any more out of the pros."

"You needn't worry, Billy," she repeated. "No one's going to get any more out of the pros."

"I'm all right," she replied. "I'll give you four glasses. He ordered with an attempt at his old game."

"You wouldn't listen to your Aunt Hester, and they got you."

"Yes," he admitted, "they got me. You got me good. I haven't a dollar."

"What are you going to do?" "I don't know," he replied.

"It's a shame to Elizabeth E. Carroll, and for that I suppose I get credit double."

"I'm writing her a candy letter. I'm telling her all about the good business I'm in and how much money I'm making."

"That's what a wicked little sport!" she gaped. "I guess you're the horrible rascal to Prosperity. I guess they won't let you come to the church socials, nor the husky bees, nor anything."

MAKING OVER OLD FRIENDS

Much Time Wasted in Effort to Do What Probably No One Ever Really Succeeded In.

"I remember how, once in my life, I wasted untold energy trying to make over my nearest friends," says David Grayson in his "Magazine." There was Harriet, for example, dear, serious, practical Harriet, I used to be froited by the way she was forever trying to reconstruct us as we supposed to keep us close to the quiet and friendly and unadventurous room: We were such a long road, you know, to the acceptance of our nearest friends for exactly what they are. Because we are so fond of them, we try to make them over to suit some curious ideal of perfection of our own—until one day we suddenly laugh aloud at our own absurdity (knowing that they are probably trying as hard to reconstruct us as we are to reconstruct them) and there, for us, we try no more to change them, we just love 'em and enjoy 'em!"

BURNING, ITCHING ECZEMA

St. Helena, Ore.—"Eczema had bothered me for two years. First it came on my hands then on my neck, back and arms. My hand first began to crack along the lines to the hand, and a white rash broke out. I was both itchy and sore. I could not sleep nights for the burning and itching. I scratched myself at night till my neck, arms and face were on mass of sores. I could not put my hands in water and my hands and face were all disfigured. "A friend sent for example of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and he made me a present of it and before I had used the first of the sample I felt a relief from that terrific itching and burning. I then bought four cakes of Cuticura Soap and six boxes of Cuticura Ointment. I used three cakes of the Cuticura Soap and three boxes of the Cuticura Ointment and now I am entirely cured." (Signed) J. A. Pender Apr. 22, 1913.

Veget the Best Medicine for Bacteria. One of the most efficient cures for a bad, common, yeast—about one-third of a compressed state rate dissolved in a glass of water and taken once or twice a day. Because that the bacteria should be kept open and the food changed. There is no new best local treatment. But Dr. Mariani's Philadelphia gives some good results. It is used until it has come to a head. As soon as it begins to develop it should be treated with a small quantity of yeast has been added. The position should not be too hot and should be changed at least three times a day. As soon as the tissues begin to soften and the abscess is well defined it should be lanced in the form of an X and the core removed at the first dressing if possible.

The sound should be syringed and washed with a solution of potassium acetate-sodium. The solution should be applied until the sore has healed.

Quite Evident. "I cannot imagine," said the fair maid to her nervous visitor, "why you are so nervous." "And yet," murmured the caller, "with his eye on the door, the case is a parent."

Spitful. She Mr. Hinks has such faith in the lid like to see his finish.

NOT A MIRACLE

Just Plain Cause and Effect.

There are some quite remarkable things happening every day, which are almost miraculous.

Some persons would not believe that a person could suffer from colds, drink tea, and recover in a few days of rest, and find relief in a few days of rest.

But, and even the doctor, it was drinking coffee that he was still drinking coffee, until it did not cure my room.

Then my doctor, who drinks Postum himself persuaded me to stop coffee and try Postum. After much hesitation I concluded to try it. It was not long before I was cured.

Write for a copy of the Postum Book, "The Road to Well-being."

Regular Postum will be well liked. It is a healthy, wholesome, and a healthy beverage. It is a cup of Postum with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage.

There's a reason for Postum. It's the reason for Postum.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

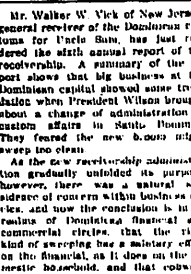

CROWN PRINCE STUDIES WAR PLANS

The heir of Hanover, Crown Prince Wilhelm, is back in Berlin after two years' exile. He comes to Berlin to study war plans and military organization under the guidance of the able staff of the general staff. He could not have come at a better time if he really desires to work and learn. Preparations for increasing the army under the terms of last year's armistice are well under way, and the staff is loaded with work of a highly practical executive nature.

The crown prince will probably not stay at Berlin long. He will be instructed by staff members in strategy, the mobilization of troops, in all that can be taught from maps at a desk. Then he will be sent to some military regiment to take up again the practical work of soldiering. By inclination as well as training, young Frederick William appears to be a thorough soldier. He may find himself called upon to use his knowledge of the war game. There are many reasons to be apprehensive of this, although the horizon is now fairly clear. War clouds roll up quickly in Europe. In the former phase of democracy, Germany's relations with all other powers are not now "correct."

RECEIVER OF THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

Mr. Walker W. Vick of New Jersey, general receiver of the Dominican Republic for Uncle Sam, has just rendered the sixth annual report of the receivership. A summary of the report shows that big business at the Dominican capital showed some trepidation when President Wilson brought about a change of administration of foreign affairs in Santo Domingo. They feared the new boss might sweep too clean.

As the new receivership administration gradually unfolded its operations, however, there was a natural subsidence of concern within business circles, and now the conclusion is in all circles of financial, financial and commercial circles, that the right kind of sweeping has a military effect on the financial, as it does on the military, and that various kinds of desirable precedents are not always conducive to forcible achievement. When that is known as the "Americanization" movement of 1917, was created, the United States accepted the responsibility of executing all the customs duties, to pay a definite proportion of the same each month to the Republic, and to apply a fixed rate of interest on a $20,000,000 bonded debt and run a sinking fund for the discharge of the principal.

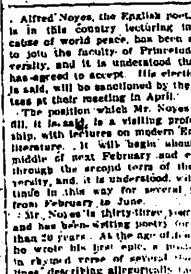

AWARDED RED CROSS GOLD MEDAL

A woman with white hair and with the spirit of personal youthfulness and enthusiasm shining from her face has been awarded the Red Cross gold medal of merit by the central board of that organization. The woman thus honored is Miss Jane A. Delano, Florence, New York. Her husband, Mr. Delano, is presenting Miss Delano to the president, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, the active head of the American Red Cross society, said of her: "It is due to Miss Delano's devoted and efficient labor that a splendid corps of over 4,000 of the best trained nurses in the country have been enrolled in the Red Cross for active service in time of war or disaster. The people of the United States may well be grateful for the unswerving and efficient work of this devoted woman."

The practicality of the remarkable organization of Red Cross nursing service, has many times been witnessed. Last spring, for instance, during the Ohio flood, Miss Delano and her co-workers were able to mobilize within a few hours' time an efficient corps of trained nurses to assist in the relief work, and the Red Cross can at all times secure through its 110 local committees on nursing service the number of nurses required in disaster or war.

OFFERED POST AT PRINCETON

Alfred Noyes, the English poet, who is in this country lecturing on the cause of world peace, has been asked to join the faculty of Princeton University, and it is understood that he has agreed to accept. His election, it is said, will be mentioned by the trustees at their meeting in April.

The position which Mr. Noyes is to fill, it is said, is a visiting professorship, with three years of the year. It will begin about the middle of next February and extend through the second semester, but will continue in this way for several years, from February to June.

Why the Possum's Tail Is Bare

By JOHN M. OSKISON

Get Out Your Paint Boxes and Color the Animals. "Crickets, this is the best seat for you!" said the rabbit to the possum. "You are a beautiful bushy tail. He was so proud of it that he combed it out every morning and made up some songs about it. The rabbit, who had only a stump of a tail after the bear pulled most of it off, not very jealous of the possum on account of his tail, and decided to play a trick on him.

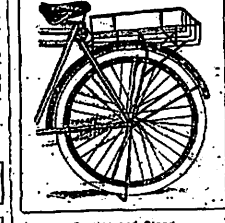

There was to be a great concert and dance of the animals, and the rabbit said that he would invite every one to come. He went to tell the possum, and the possum said: "I will come if you will be sure to have a special seat for me. I have such a fine tail that I ought to sit wherever every one can have a good look at it."

"Very well," said the rabbit. "I will have the best seat for you!" and he will send you some one to comb and dress your tail for you." The possum was pleased, and thanked the rabbit, who was sure a good hair cutter that he was called the barber. "You so drew the possum's tail for the dance," the rabbit said to the cricket. "The rabbit told the cricket: just what to do.

CARRIER AND BICYCLE STAND

Handy Combination Which Increases Utility of Wheel-Labor of Errands Greatly Simplified.

While the fact may not be generally appreciated, it is, nevertheless, true that the bicycle is increasing in its popularity, not so much for pleasure as for practical purposes. This is particularly true of the suburbs and country, where there are always errands to be done, and the "bicycle carrier" is increasing in its popularity. It is a bicycle with a carrier for the bicycle, which stands in the corner always ready and willing to point to another. There are other carriers to be carried to and from the post office, and for the purpose the combined carrier and stand has been invented. It is quick in place without regard to the presence of a passenger, and it is quick in place. The carrier will hold a weight of 100 pounds and the stand, which in use, will hold the weight of a 75-pound rider.

DIZZY, HEADACHY, SICK, "CASCARETS"

Gently cleanse your liver and sluggish bowels while you sleep.

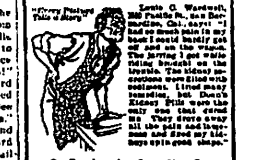

Get a 10-cent box. Get "Cascarets" biliousness, distress, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, starchy stomach. Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the congested waste matter and poisons in the bowels. A Cascarets to-night will surely brighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—no laxative from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Adv.
